AMERICANS HURL BACK JAPS ON LUZON

MAJOR SETS UP CAMP OFFICES IN CHILLICOTHE

Salfingere, Staff Operate From Paint Street Property

SURVEYING UNDER WAY

Toledo Firm Sending Its Employees Into Area To Start Work

Any question that might have existed concerning establishment of an Army cantonment in the Pickaway-Ross County area appeared to be dispelled Tuesday when Major Frank W. Salfingere, area engineer, prepared to establish engineering offices in a North Paint Street building, Chillicothe, from which point he will direct construction of the camp. The Army plans to take over 46,000 acres of Pickaway and Ross County farm land for its camp, and the only step necessary for the cantonment to become an actuality is an announcement from the War Department in Washington that the "okey" signal for construction has been flashed.

The building to be occupied by Major Salfingere is that formerly used by the Chillicothe Gazette, a newspaper in the Ross County seat. It is being cleaned, painted and repaired and may be occupied during the next few days.

Hopes of Circleville interests that the engineering offices might be established in this city were blasted when Major Salfingere announced the lease of the Chillicothe offices. He had spent part of Saturday in Circleville and had looked over the second floor of Memorial Hall and the National Guard Armory.

About 30 Toledoans, employees of the Mills, Rhines, Bellman and Norhoff firm of engineers, arrived Monday in Chillicothe to start working on the camp layout. They will be housed in the Gazette building as soon as it is ready for occupancy.

Surveying work was under way Monday, four parties going into the camp area which includes parts of Deercreek, Perry and Wayne Townships in Pickaway County and North Union Township, Ross County. The surveyors were in charge of F. A. Pease of Cleveland, who conducted the survey of the Ravenscroft arsenal project where he was employed for 16 months. He and his corps also did some work at Camp Perry which required an additional three months.

Illinois To Get Infantry Camp?

LEWISTON, Ill., Jan. 13 — The roar of big guns and the tramp of marching men soon may shatter the peace and quiet of the sleepy Spoon River country.

Surveys and appraisals are under way today and if the government decides to establish a military camp in this area near Lewiston almost 80 square miles of country will be utilized.

If the plans go through, some 35,000 men are expected to be trained in the area. The proposed site would encompass several townships, including the somnolent village of Bernadotte, immortalized by Edgar Lee Masters in his "Spoon River Anthology."

A staff of 60 military and civilian workers is checking over the site. Around 56,000 acres of land in some 400 tracts will be considered.

A full streamlined infantry division would be trained at the camp if established, it was stated.

Strong Reinforcements Hinted At Singapore

As Jap Drive Continues in Southwest Pacific

SOVIET TAKES OREL; BRITISH IN SOLLUM

Russians Land More Transvaal, Scottish Men In Crimea

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—A British radio broadcast heard by NBC said today the BBC understands unofficially that Orel, 210 miles south of Moscow, has been recaptured by Russian troops.

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—New landings of Soviet troops in the Crimea were acknowledged today in a German news agency (DNB) dispatch, according to a British broadcast picked up by NBC.

The London radio pointed out the Russians themselves said little about the new landings and that the Russian government newspaper Izvestia merely announced Russian troops are "pursuing the enemy" and trying to prevent the Nazis from entrenching themselves anywhere in the peninsula.

MOSCOW, Jan. 13—Smashing new successes for Russian forces on far-flung centers of the front were revealed by Soviet military advices today.

The Communist newspaper Pravda said the Russians have occupied 24 populated places during the last 24 hours and have killed 2,000 enemy troops, including several hundred Finns.

PARROT MALADY STRIKES SIX IN CLEVELAND AREA

CLEVELAND, Jan. 13—Six persons afflicted with psittacosis, parrot fever, were in hospitals today and a seventh case was hospitalized for observation.

The malady is contracted from infected birds of the parrot family and causes death in an average of four out of every 10 cases.

There is little danger that the disease will spread, city health authorities said, because it is much less communicable from one human to another than it is from bird to human.

All the victims were found to have had contact with birds recently shipped into Cleveland, City Health Commissioner Harold J. Knapp said. Upwards of 100 birds, the bulk of a consignment shipped into Cleveland for sale, were put under quarantine by the City Health Department.

LABOR BOARD SET UP

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—A 12-man National War Labor Board was established under presidential order today to adjust labor disputes for duration of the emergency through voluntary or compulsory means.

THIS map shows how the three main efforts of the Japanese southwest Pacific drive are aimed at eventual envelopment of the Dutch East Indies. With Davao (A), in the Philippines, as a base for operations and reinforcement to troops already landed in Borneo (C), fall of Singapore (B) would enable the Japs to attempt an encirclement of the highly important island of Java. The savage resistance of American, British and Dutch forces to date has greatly delayed consummation of such Japanese strategy.

RED CROSS FUND 'OVER THE TOP'

Nearly $11,000 Received To Date With More To Be Reported

Pickaway County's Red Cross War Relief Fund climbed well above the $8,500 quota Tuesday when Carl C. Leist, local chapter chairman, announced that contributions totaled nearly $10,500.

Following the luncheon meeting in the Elks Home Monday noon nearly $1,600 came in during the afternoon, the Red Cross chairman said. Additional funds were being received at Red Cross Headquarters, West Main Street, Tuesday, and officials stationed there said that several of the communities of the county had not yet reported.

Contributions from Pickaway County schools Tuesday totaled $581.06. Superintendent George McDowell said, with a few additional donations still to come in. City schools contributed $350 to the campaign.

AGED MAN, WIFE FOUND FROZEN TO DEATH IN HOME

HAVERHILL, Mass., Jan. 13—The little flat was draughty and cold. The two old people huddled close to a small oil stove.

"My goodness you'll freeze to death in this place, why don't you turn up the burner?" asked Mrs. Ethel T. Emerson, a visitor from the Welfare Department.

They didn't answer. They didn't look up.

Mrs. Emerson touched the stove. It was cold. There was no fuel in the tank.

Too old, too feeble to go for help or for fuel, Ernest D. Libbey, 82, and his wife, Ardel Stevens Libbey, 75, had sat together, hand in hand, as the flame in the little stove flickered and died.

And then life's flame flickered—and died.

AGREEMENT ON DAYLIGHT TIME MADE BY SOLONS

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—Congressional leaders today reached an agreement for passage of the House-approved Daylight Savings Bill, which orders clocks advanced one hour, the order to take effect 20 days after the bill becomes law.

The administration, it was stated, agreed to drop the Senate bill which would have given the President discretion to move the clocks ahead two hours.

Final action on the measure is expected by tomorrow night, leaders said.

Air Superiority In Next Three Days Promised In Vital Area

VICHY, Jan. 13—British resistance in Malaya is increasing and British and Australian forces are replacing Indians and Malay troops, a Tokyo dispatch to Vichy said today.

LONDON, Jan. 13—A Reuters (British) dispatch from Singapore today forecast a possible quick change of the Malayan situation in favor of Britain. "It is learned that an important announcement can be expected at any moment which may change the Malayan situation considerably in Britain's favor," the dispatch said.

LONDON, Jan. 13—Big Australian air reinforcements have arrived at Cairo, Exchange Telegraph reported from Sydney today.

Fifty percent of air strength in the Middle East shortly will be Australian, the dispatch said.

LONDON, Jan. 13 — British military authorities maintained silence today over Singapore reports hinting that some new, sensational development is pending in the Malayan war theatre.

First hint that something new is on the fire was contained in a Reuters Singapore dispatch, which said:

"It is learned that an important announcement can be expected at any moment which may change the Malayan situation considerably in Britain's favor."

No information was forthcoming as to whether this can be interpreted in a military, naval or aerial sense.

Authorities made it clear that for the present all interpretation must remain pure guesswork. One thing was certain, however. That (Continued on Page Eight)

Fuehrer Will Rebuild Munich To Perpetuate His Memory After Death

(Editor's Note: In the first two articles in this chapter of "Hitler Unmasked," Pierre J. Huss, for eight years chief Berlin correspondent of International News Service, told in detail of Adolf Hitler's plans of the future. In the third and concluding installment, he reveals for the first time the Munich blueprint which sets forth how that city is to be rebuilt around a 200-foot column erected to the Fuehrer's glory—if he wins this war and dies a victor.)

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—Perhaps I found out by chance on that day at Napoleon's tomb why Hitler has abandoned the idea of using the Eagle's Nest as his last resting place after death.

He said, if you remember, that people would have been deeply impressed with Napoleon if they could have reached up and touched the stone he sleeps in. His idea was that it would have created a

GERMANS LIST POTATO HOLDINGS, RADIO SAYS

NEW YORK, Jan. 13—All Germans in the Reich had to file "potato questionnaires", stating their individual potato holdings, today, the "radio revolution", an anti-Nazi freedom station in Germany reported in a broadcast heard by NBC.

The potato questionnaires had to be filled out by all citizens "on their oath and honor", the freedom station said.

94 LOSE LIVES ON STEAMSHIP

Submarine Hits Ship Only 160 Miles Off Coast Of Nova Scotia

AN EASTERN CANADIAN PORT, Jan. 13—An enemy submarine operating in the frigid North Atlantic only 160 miles off the coast of Nova Scotia, sank a large steamship with a probable loss of 94 lives within the last 36 hours.

First intimation of the sinking was the arrival today at this unnamed port of 70 to 80 survivors aboard another ship.

Survivors reported that the attack came suddenly as their big craft ploughed through the heavy seas westbound in near-zero weather.

Without warning, a torpedo crashed into the ship and she shuddered from stem to stern and then began to sink.

Dennis P. Carroll, 19, of Southampton, one of the crew, said that the attack came at 7:45 p. m.

The first torpedo crashed into the oil tank by the engine room and it burst into flame.

While passengers and crew rushed to lifeboats and rafts, the submarine leisurely circled the doomed ship and let go another torpedo which crashed into the port side below the bridge.

The ship's boilers blew up, some ammunition on board exploded and flames shot high into the air as those on board struggled with frozen lines while the flames licked their bodies.

The Chinese killed 8,000 more Japanese trapped north of Changsha, and captured 1,000 more, reducing to roughly 30,000 the force of more than 100,000 Japanese who unsuccessfully tried to capture Changsha.

WAR TODAY

'Cruiser Warfare' May Be Under Way Soon In Pacific

By Capt. John H. Craig, U. S. Marine Corps, Retired

Dispatches in today's news, chronicling the arrival of Admiral Thomas Hart in the Dutch East Indies and noting an apparent shortage of Japanese dive-bombers in the Philippines, seem to indicate a significant coming development in the strategy of the united forces in the eastern theatre.

Taken together, these appear to foreshadow the development of the greatest campaign of "cruiser warfare" in history against Japanese lines of communication in the Pacific.

"Cruiser warfare" is a term coined by naval strategists and historians for a type of conflict waged a small, elusive naval units, aimed at destroying the foe by cutting off his vital supplies and harrying his merchant shipping, transports and raw-material carriers from the seas.

In the old days such warfare was carried on by small, swift sailing vessels, sloops, brigs and frigates. A classic illustration of its effectiveness was furnished by the operations of United States (Continued on Page Eight)

WAR VETERAN, 51, BEATS HIS WIFE, LEAPS TO DEATH

DAYTON, Jan. 13—William Grothjan, 51, a veteran of World War I, was dead today and his wife, Anna, 45, was recovering at Good Samaritan hospital following a quarrel in which he beat her with a milk bottle and then leaped to his death from a third floor window.

They had quarreled, Mrs. Grothjan told police, when Grothjan accused her of being unwilling to take him to the Dayton Military home in time for his evening meal.

BABY'S RUBBER PANTS ON "DIFFICULT" LIST

CHICAGO, Jan. 13—Chicago merchants reported today that because of the government conservation program the infant population which goes for the rubber trouser as an item of apparel will be confronted with the necessity of a change of costume before long.

Since this garment is off the priority list, the merchants predicted, it soon will be hard to get. They also feared that rubber gloves for housewives and the rubber bathing cap soon would disappear.

U. S. BATTERIES PROVE SUPERIOR IN ISLAND WAR

Initial All-Out Nipponese Offensive Broken With Terrific Losses

LACK OF PLANES NOTED

Observers Believe Tokyo Has Been Forced To Divert Strength

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13—The U. S.-Philippines forces scored their first victory over the Japanese invaders since the fall of Manila today when they won a 24-hour artillery duel, "shattering and dispersing" enemy tank and infantry formations and causing them to retreat.

The vigorous defense of MacArthur's army forced the attacking Japanese to withdraw from positions "formerly occupied."

The War Department, in an official communique disclosed that the initial all-out offensive on the part of the Japanese has been definitely stopped and forced back with terrific losses.

The communique said that enemy tanks, armored units and infantry concentrations "were shattered." American and Filipino losses were described as "relatively slight."

Eleven Japanese batteries were silenced in the hail of shot and shell.

Text of the communique follows: "1. Philippine Theatre: In 24 hours of continuous artillery fighting American and Philippine batteries proved definitely superior to those of the Japanese. Columns of enemy tanks and other armored units, as well as infantry concentrations, were shattered and dispersed by our fire, with heavy Japanese losses. Our counter-battery fire was particularly effective. Eleven hostile batteries were silenced. Enemy artillery elements have now been withdrawn well to the rear of the positions formerly occupied. Losses to American and Philippine troops were relatively slight."

"Enemy air activity was confined to attacks by dive bombers in support of artillery fire. No enemy bombing attacks were made on fixed fortifications. "There is nothing to report from other areas."

May Be Pushed Back
It was believed that the Japs were pushed back into Pampanga province, north of Manila.

Japan's failure to launch its big push in the Philippines with dive bombers was accepted today in Washington military circles as evidence that Nipponese aviation power is numerically insufficient for the Mikado's war against the ABCD powers in the Far East.

Experts explained that Japan was expected to open the "all-out" onslaught in Luzon with an unceasing sky assault. In contrast, (Continued on Page Eight)

RIFT OVER PRICE CONTROL ACTION GROWS GREATER

WASHINGTON, Jan. 13 — President Roosevelt today faced a growing revolt in Congress over price control legislation, with the House rebelling after the Senate ignored the White House's wishes by voting a stiff boost in farm price ceilings.

As the crisis grew, the President summoned House conferees on the revised bill to the White House, apparently in hopes of negotiating a truce.

ALL NORWEGIAN ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS HELD

Reichscommissar Moves To Halt Activity On Behalf Of British Forces

COMMANDO RAIDS CITED

Officials Sent To Reich Camps After Capture Of 'Quislings'

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 13—Joseph Terboven, Reichscommissar for Norway, has ordered all former officers of the Norwegian navy and air force imprisoned, it was reported today from Oslo.

The reason for the order is that 100 officers who according to Terboven had promised not to fight against the Reich took part in the last British commando raid on the Norwegian coast, and escaped with the British landing parties.

All Norwegian officers promised not to take up arms against the Reich, said Terboven, and therefore "all are responsible for the attitude of the officers who fled to Great Britain."

Terboven also ordered 20 former high court officials, close friends of the Norwegian royal family, sent to concentration camps in Germany in retaliation for the kidnapping by the British of eight members of the "Quisling" party, a violation of international law, according to the Terboven announcement.

25 Nazi Generals Resign Places

LONDON, Jan. 13—An Exchange Telegraph Dispatch from Zurich said today it had been learned on "unquestionable" authority that some 25 German generals resigned when Hitler dismissed Gen. Walther Von Brauchitsch as supreme Nazi commander.

Exchange said Col. Gen. Paul Ludwig Von Kleist was among those who resigned.

The agency quoted the same source as saying Hitler has moved his military headquarters for Smolensk to some unidentified point in southern Russia.

The Daily Express said "significant movements" of German forces in western Europe and Norway have been observed by the R.A.F. since Von Brauchitsch was fired and Hitler took personal command of the German army.

"Most reinforcements are being massed in the western parts of occupied France," the Express said.

"It is believed Hitler may have sent troops to these countries to prepare for a possible invasion of Britain following his setbacks on the Russian front."

Americans Must Report To Nazis

VICY, Jan. 13—German authorities in occupied France today ordered American citizens to report to police stations once a week, it was reported from Paris today.

DEER TOO "DEAR" CHATTANOOGA, Tenn.—Last summer, when three sets of twin deer were born, Chattanooga Zoo officials felt mighty proud. Now, all three sets have become too "dear" to keep.

"It's a simple matter of supply and demand," said Parks and Playground Commissioner Robert M. Cooke. "The number of animals demand more food than we've got money available in our budget." So the six "dear" deer have been given to the State Conservation Department, and will help augment the supply in the Tennessee State Parks.

Trustees Hear Thomas, Name Shook President

"The road to security is back to the land" declared Joe Thomas, Ashland County, president of the State Township Trustees' and Clerks' Association, when he spoke to the Pickaway County Trustees' and Clerks' Association Monday night.

"The world is out of joint. Ideas of democracy are born among the rural people and it is through the simple rural life that we can return to happiness, contentment and prosperity," the speaker remarked.

Mr. Thomas pointed to the simple life of some of the religious sects of Ohio, holding them up as ideals toward which our more complex society might strive in seeking economic, social and spiritual security. He urged that townships hold fast to their localized form of government, because "only through local government can democracy exist. He said the township government gets more value out of every dollar than any other unit.

Funds for the coming years will be less, he warned the local townships and clerks gathered in the Common Pleas Court Room of the Court House, since the government must demand more and more for its war program. He asked the township officials to consult the prosecuting attorney and the county engineer on questions relating to their respective townships. Prosecuting Attorney George Gerhardt and County Engineer Henry McCrady were at the meeting.

George Shook, Jackson Township, was elected president of the organization. Mr. Shook replaces J. R. Hoover of Harrison Township. New vice-president of the organization is Emory Reay, Darby Township, replacing D. A. Marshall of Washington Township. H. L. Melvin of Muhlenberg Township is the new secretary.

GEORGE THOMAS CARREL SAFE ON PACIFIC ISLE

H. M. Waites, East Mill Street, has received word from his stepson, George Thomas Carrel, that he is safe in the Hawaiian Islands. The youth, a Circleville High graduate in the class of 1939, is in the United States Army stationed at Schofield Barracks.

The communication received Monday was the first word Mr. Waites has had since the Japanese sneak attack on the islands.

The art of manufacturing silk bolting cloth was first practiced by French Protestants in exile in Holland. At the beginning of the 19th century it was introduced into France and Switzerland.

For the second week in a row the Music Hall entertains the military as it hits the ether on Thursday night, January 15 at 9 p. m. Choosing the army this week, Bing Crosby and his cohorts will welcome an anti-aircraft officer from the harbor defenses at Fort McArthur. Also slated to appear on the program is an old friend, Robert Young, who is currently starring in the film "H. M. Pulham, Esq."

Continuing the procedure of delving into the serious for a moment or two, Bing plans to ask the army officer to tell what he can about air raid precautions. Due to army regulations, however, the officer's name is to be withheld till program time.

RADIO BRIEFS

Ever hear of a radio rehearsal without the program's star? That's the way "How Am I Doing?" rehearses. Reason: It's a comedy-variety-quiz and Bob Hawk, star of the show, uses no script. All that's left to rehearse then, is Vaughn Monroe's orchestra.

Gordon Jenkins will handle the musical assignment when Hazard goes coast to coast Friday, January 23, 10 p. m.

Penny Singleton and Arthur Lake, stars of the "Blondie" show were among the first of Hollywood celebrities to sign a New Year's resolution scroll pledging their assistance to "respond unflinchingly to any calls upon our time and resources by defense agencies." The scroll is on its way to President Roosevelt in Washington.

That was Pinton Colvig doing the dog impersonations on "The Great Gildersleeve" Sunday. Colvig impersonates both "Pluto" and "Goofy" in the Walt Disney cartoons.

Look for Bill Thompson to add a fifth characterization to the "Fibber McGee" show soon. He's toying with the idea now but is keeping it a deep-dyed secret until he has huddled with writer Don Quinn. Thompson already does Old Timer, Wallace Wimple, Horatio K. Boomer and Nick DePopolus.

Saltcreek Valley

The Saltcreek Farmers' Institute will be held in the school auditorium on January 16 and 17.

The Conservation Club met on January 7 to decide on the building of bird houses and winter feeding stations. Each member will be expected to build a birdhouse, paint it, and erect it in a suitable place. This work on birdhouses is to be completed by the last of March. The Club has several winter feeding stations throughout the neighborhood and several boys have volunteered to keep them filled.

ALL NORWEGIAN ARMY AND NAVY OFFICERS HELD

Reichscommissar Moves To Halt Activity On Behalf Of British Forces

COMMANDO RAIDS CITED

Officials Sent To Reich Camps After Capture Of 'Quislings'

STOCKHOLM, Jan. 13.—Joseph Terboven, Reichscommissar for Norway, has ordered all former officers of the Norwegian navy and air force imprisoned, it was reported today from Oslo.

The reason for the order is that 100 officers who according to Terboven had promised not to fight against the Reich took part in the last British commando raid on the Norwegian coast, and escaped with the British landing parties.

All Norwegian officers promised not to take up arms against the Reich, said Terboven, and therefore "all are responsible for the attitude of the officers who fled to Great Britain."

25 Nazi Generals Resign Places

LONDON, Jan. 13.—An Exchange Telegraph Dispatch from Zurich said today it had been learned on "unquestionable" authority that some 25 German generals resigned when Hitler dismissed Gen. Walther von Brauchitsch as supreme Nazi commander.

Exchange said Col. Gen. Paul Ludwig Von Kleist was among those who resigned.

The agency quoted the same source as saying Hitler has moved his military headquarters for Smolensk to some unidentified point in southern Russia.

The Daily Express said "significant movements" of German forces in western Europe and Norway have been observed by the R.A.F. since Von Brauchitsch was fired and Hitler took personal command of the German army.

Most reinforcements are being massed in the western parts of occupied France, the Express said.

"It is believed Hitler may have sent troops to these countries to prepare for a possible invasion of Britain following his setbacks on the Russian front."

Americans Must Report To Nazis

VICY, Jan. 13.—German authorities in occupied France today ordered American citizens to report to police stations once a week, it was reported from Paris today.

DEER TOO "DEAR" CHATTANOOGA, Tenn.—Last summer, when three sets of twin deer were born, Chattanooga Zoo officials felt mighty proud. Now, all three sets have become too "dear" to keep.

"It's a simple matter of supply and demand," said Parks and Playground Commissioner Robert M. Cooke. "The number of animals demand more food than we've got money available in our budget." So the six "dear" deer have been given to the State Conservation Department, and will help augment the supply in the Tennessee State Parks.

Some of Uncle Sam's Fighters

HERE is an imposing array of Uncle Sam's fighting planes lined up awaiting the signal to take off. There will be thousands of this aircraft—183,000 to be exact—manufactured within the next two years, and unlimited opportunities are now available for young men to earn second lieutenant commissions as pilots, bombardiers and navigators in the Army Air Forces. Male American citizens between ages of 20 and 26, inclusive, who are physically and educationally qualified, are eligible.

Army officers will be at the Elk Home Tuesday evening to address eligible young men attending an Aviation Cadet meeting. Motion pictures of the country's major air fields will be shown also.

MRS. FINLEY JOHNSTON DIES IN MEADE HOME

A short illness of complications ended in death at 2 p. m. Monday at her home in Meade, Pickaway Township, of Mrs. Sylvia Ann Johnston, widow of Finley Johnston. She was a native of Meigs County, born July 8, 1864, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Simon Ellis.

Her survivors are two daughters, Mrs. Sylvia Talbert of Saron, Wis., and Miss Leona Johnston of Hamden, Ind.; four sons, Ralph of Ray, O.; Donald of Hamden, Ind.; Howard of the home and Paul of Chillicothe, and a brother, Seph Ellis of Florida.

The Rev. Thomas Adams of Kingston will officiate at services to be held Wednesday at 2 p. m. in the Salem Church, Meade, with burial in the adjoining cemetery by Donald E. Whittell. The body will be at the Johnston residence in Meade where friends may call.

Trustees Hear Thomas, Name Shook President

"The road to security is back to the land" declared Joe Thomas, Ashland County, president of the State Township Trustees' and Clerks' Association, when he spoke to the Pickaway County Trustees' and Clerks' Association Monday night.

"The world is out of joint. Ideas of democracy are born among the rural people and it is through the simple rural life that we can return to happiness, contentment and prosperity," the speaker remarked.

Mr. Thomas pointed to the simple life of some of the religious sects of Ohio, holding them up as ideals toward which our more complex society might strive in seeking economic, social and spiritual security. He urged that townships hold fast to their localized form of government, because "only through local government can democracy exist. He said the township government gets more value out of every dollar than any other unit.

Funds for the coming years will be less, he warned the local townships and clerks gathered in the Common Pleas Court Room of the Court House, since the government must demand more and more for its war program. He asked the township officials to consult the prosecuting attorney and the county engineer on questions relating to their respective townships. Prosecuting Attorney George Gerhardt and County Engineer Henry McCrady were at the meeting.

George Shook, Jackson Township, was elected president of the organization. Mr. Shook replaces J. R. Hoover of Harrison Township. New vice-president of the organization is Emory Reay, Darby Township, replacing D. A. Marshall of Washington Township. H. L. Melvin of Muhlenberg Township is the new secretary.

GEORGE THOMAS CARREL SAFE ON PACIFIC ISLE

H. M. Waites, East Mill Street, has received word from his stepson, George Thomas Carrel, that he is safe in the Hawaiian Islands. The youth, a Circleville High graduate in the class of 1939, is in the United States Army stationed at Schofield Barracks.

The communication received Monday was the first word Mr. Waites has had since the Japanese sneak attack on the islands.

The art of manufacturing silk bolting cloth was first practiced by French Protestants in exile in Holland. At the beginning of the 19th century it was introduced into France and Switzerland.

MARSHALL'S GUEST

Maureen O'Hara, bewitching dark-haired colleen who is the toast of the Rialto today for her fine performance in John Ford's "How Green Was My Valley," will do a guest spot on Herbert Marshall's new show Monday, at 7 p. m. Comedians Bert Wheeler and Hank Ladd will do their part to entertain their glamorous guest and the Merry Macs will sing for her.

CROSBY PROGRAM

For the second week in a row the Music Hall entertains the military as it hits the ether on Thursday night, January 15 at 9 p. m. Choosing the army this week, Bing Crosby and his cohorts will welcome an anti-aircraft officer from the harbor defenses at Fort McArthur. Also slated to appear on the program is an old friend, Robert Young, who is currently starring in the film "H. M. Pulham, Esq."

Continuing the procedure of delving into the serious for a moment or two, Bing plans to ask the army officer to tell what he can about air raid precautions. Due to army regulations, however, the officer's name is to be withheld till program time.

RADIO BRIEFS

Ever hear of a radio rehearsal without the program's star? That's the way "How Am I Doin'" rehearses. Reason: It's a comedy-variety-quiz and Bob Hawk, star of the show, uses no script. All that's left to rehearse then, is Vaughn Monroe's orchestra.

Gordon Jenkins will handle the musical assignment when Hap Hazard goes coast to coast Friday, January 23, 10 p. m.

Penny Singleton and Arthur Lake, stars of the "Blondie" show were among the first of Hollywood celebrities to sign a New Year's resolution scroll pledging their assistance to "respond unstintingly to any calls upon our time and resources by defense agencies." The scroll is on its way to President Roosevelt in Washington.

That was Pinton Colvig doing the dog impersonations on "The Great Gildersleeve" Sunday. Colvig impersonates both "Pluto" and "Goofy" in the Walt Disney cartoons.

Look for Bill Thompson to add a fifth characterization to the "Fibber McGee" show soon. He's toying with the idea now but is keeping it a deep-dyed secret until he has huddled with Writer Don Quinn. Thompson already does Old Timer, Wallace Wimple, Horatio K. Boomer and Nick DePopulus.

Saltcreek Valley

The Saltcreek Farmers' Institute will be held in the school auditorium on January 16 and 17.

The Conservation Club met on January 7 to decide on the building of bird houses and winter feeding stations. Each member will be expected to build a bird-house, paint it, and erect it in a suitable place. This work on bird-houses is to be completed by the last of March. The Club has several winter feeding stations throughout the neighborhood and several boys have volunteered to keep them filled.

Mrs. Eva Hedges last Sunday went to Circleville where she will spend the winter with Mr. and Mrs. Clydus Fosnaugh at 531 Elm Avenue.

The Saltcreek Valley Grange No. 2314 installed its officers last Tuesday evening. The attendance was good.

Mr. and Mrs. Clydus Fosnaugh of Circleville and Mrs. Eva Hedges were the six o'clock dinner guests at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Bochart and Wallace last Sunday evening.

Mrs. Edna Luckhart entertained at a nice dinner last Sunday the following guests: Mr. and Mrs. H. E. Defenbaugh, daughter Mary, Mrs. Stella Dresbach, Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Luckhart, sons Max and David, Mr. and Mrs.

O. S. Mowery, Miss Jane Tunney-hill, William Cottrell.

The Club has gathered 16 1/2 bushels of walnuts in the walnut drive. These are to be used in the feeding stations.

REVIVAL PLANNED

Revival services will begin at the Church of the Brethren Sunday evening, lasting through January 31. Meetings will be directed by the mission board, the pastor and church members.

COUNTIAN'S CAR KILLS CHILD, 5, ON STATE ROAD

Leroy Schundlmire Runs Into Path Of Phil List Vehicle

DRIVER IS EXONERATED

Youngster Playing With Dog At Time Of Fatal Accident

Franklin County's second traffic fatality outside Columbus was reported Monday afternoon when Leroy Schundlmire Jr., 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Schundlmire, 3759 Jackson Pike, was fatally injured when struck by the automobile of Phil A. List, Williamsport Route 1.

State Highway Patrolman W. J. Winkle said List tried to avoid hitting the child by slowing down and swerving his car to the left. The patrolman said the Schundlmire boy was playing in the driveway of his home with his dog when suddenly he ran into the road.

Surviving are the boy's parents, one sister, three brothers and the grandparents.

He was taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital, Columbus, where he died an hour and a half after the accident. Death was caused by a skull fracture.

Frank Clark, Williamsport, suffered leg and hip injuries and Harris Atkins, 258 South Grubb Street, Columbus, face lacerations Monday night when their automobiles collided on the Jackson Pike near the workhouse.

TEACHER TENURE STATUTE FACES TEST IN COURT

COLUMBUS, Jan. 13.—A four way test of the teacher-tenure act passed by the 1941 legislature got under way today when arguments in four appeals were heard by the state supreme court.

To speed both the hearings and the ultimate rulings, the court ordered the battery of 21 lawyers appearing on both sides in the four cases to be prepared for presentation of their causes this morning.

First case on the calendar is one brought by Oscar M. Bishop, a former teacher in the Mount Orab village school district, who has been denied a continuing or life contract. He is represented by two attorneys and the Mount Orab board of education by two firms.

The second case is that of John W. Creig, represented by Ira D. Lucal, against the Cleveland Board of Education.

Scheduled third is the appeal of Verne Lynch against the Springfield Township Rural school district of Summit County, while the fourth case is that of Mrs. Louella May Elsenman against the city of Ellyria's board of education.

In all instances, the teachers have been denied continuing or life contracts which cannot be revoked except after a proper hearing of specific charges.

The teacher tenure act provided that contracts must be given by Sept. 1 last, to all teachers who had five successive years of employment under the same board of education at the time the act was passed, except in districts having a school population of less than 800.

and was educated in the United States. He spent four years in the Philippine Islands and served a year and a half in France in the American Army.

After returning from the war, he went to South America, remaining seven years in Chile, three in Bolivia, and ten in Argentina. During this sojourn among the Latin American nations he was engaged mainly in educational and literary work in the Spanish language. He came to know intimately the attitudes and ambitions of the leaders in South America, especially those who were seeking to develop character and idealism in the youth of the various countries.

While in Bolivia, Dr. Stuntz served as correspondent for the Reuter's News Service. He served on the staff of the interpreter-translators for the American delegation at the peace conference in Buenos Aires in 1936. In addition to the responsibilities of his appointments during the decades he was in South America, he traveled extensively throughout that continent and studied its educational systems.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

No. 8 Save For Taxes

To make it easier for taxpayers to meet the increased taxes required by the National Defense Program, the Treasury Department is offering for sale two series of notes, both dated August 1, 1941, and maturing August 1, 1943.

In January of each year two new series will be provided, so that a taxpayer can always purchase notes during the entire year in which he is receiving his income for use in payment of taxes due the following year. The reason for the 2-year note is to permit a taxpayer, if he so desires, to begin saving in January of one year and continue through the year to save for his taxes due the following year.

All notes are sold at par and accrued interest. When presented in payment of income taxes they will be received at par and accrued interest up to and including the month in which such taxes are paid. Interest will not accrue beyond the maturity of the notes. If not presented in payment of income taxes, they will be redeemed for cash under certain specified conditions at the purchase price paid for the notes. In other words, the taxpayer if he redeems the notes for cash, gets back just the amount he paid.

Complete information about these Treasury notes will be found in a Treasury Department circular available at local banks, Federal Reserve banks and branches, or Treasury Department, Washington D. C.

2 p. m. in the Pilgrim Holiness Church, Williamsport, the Rev. James G. Miller officiating. Burial will be in Springlawn Cemetery by C. E. Hill. The body will remain at the funeral home where friends may call until the hour of services.

and Duchess of Windsor were preparing to take a trip to Mexico on the "Southern Cross," famous yacht of Axel Wenner-Gren, mysterious Swedish industrialist.

Wenner-Gren, who had been entertaining the niece of the Mexican president on the yacht, actually started off for Nassau to pick up the Duke and his Duchess when the war broke. But the Duke changed his mind. He decided to stick to his job in Nassau.

COLONEL LINDBERGH

The colonel's commission discarded last year by Charles Lindbergh while waging his bitter isolationist crusade will be reinstated by the War Department—when his formal application has been received.

As this is written it has not yet reached the War Department. The ex-hero signified his desire to regain his reserve commission in a personal letter to General "Hap" Arnold, chief of the Air Corps and an old friend. It was Arnold who gave out the news story that Lindbergh wanted to be restored to Army rolls.

So far, the War Department knows nothing about it officially. However, when Lindbergh's formal application is received it will be approved and he will be assigned to active duty. Approval will be routine, since under Army Procedure, reserve commissions are reinstated without delay if request is made within 12 months after resignation. After the lapse of a year, such applications are handled just as original requests. But it was only seven months ago that Lindbergh quit.

NOTE: Since the outbreak of war in the Pacific, stripping Army pilots almost daily are performing feats of daring and skill flying big bombers vast distances, that make the first trans-Atlantic flights look like amateur aviation. For military reasons the story of these spectacular flights now cannot be disclosed. But later it will be one of the truly great epics of aviation.

BRASS MINE

The Bureau of Mines recently received a phone call from an official of the OPM metals and minerals division asking about "brass mines."

"What are you trying to do, kid us?" said a BM expert. "What do you mean, kid you?" protested the OPM-er. "I'm serious. We want to find out all we can about brass mines—how many there are in the country, where located and the total annual production of brass ore."

"Mister, we'd like awfully much to accommodate you," was the flabbergasted reply. "But any schoolboy can tell you that there just is no such animal as a brass mine. Brass is an alloy made chiefly of copper and zinc."

"Oh," was the startled gasp from the OPM end of the line.

NOTE: Testifying before the House Appropriations Committee, David A. Uebelacker, chief of the copper section of the OPM materials division, admitted that he had no previous experience in the copper industry. "I came to the copper branch without any previous knowledge," he said, "other than what general knowledge the average person has." Before coming to Washington, Uebelacker was an engineer.

Education for Death; the Making of a Nazi—by Gregor Ziemer. The head of the American Colony school in Berlin writes of his experiences visiting the schools and institutions of Germany. His book is a firsthand account of Nazi education, which is firing youth with hate for America and a fanatical desire to die for Hitler. Institutions he visited sterilized or put to death the unfit, and encouraged girls to have "state" babies.

Son of the Smoky Sea—by Nutchuck. "This autobiography of a half-Eskimo, half-Norwegian boy, who was brought up in the Methodist mission at Unalaska and later ventured outside to study medicine, is told with sincerity and directness. Nutchuck's incredibly adventurous boyhood, his steadfastness of purpose in the face of difficulties, and the conflict that resulted from the emergence into the civilized world, make dramatic reading." (Booklist.) Designed especially for grades 7-8-9.

One Red Rose Forever—by Mildred A. Jordan. Working with the few authenticated facts now known about the life and loves of "Baron" Henry William Stiegel, the author has written a stirring tale of early American life. Stiegel, of course, is the German immigrant whose name was given to a famous early American glassware.

Butterflies—by Macy, R. W. "A handbook of the butterflies of the U. S., complete for the region north of the Potomac and Ohio rivers and east of the Dakotas." (Booklist.)

Milk Mixture For Stomach Ulcers

COUNTIAN'S CAR KILLS CHILD, 5, ON STATE ROAD

Leroy Schundmire Runs Into Path Of Phil List Vehicle

DRIVER IS EXONERATED

Youngster Playing With Dog At Time Of Fatal Accident

Franklin County's second traffic fatality outside Columbus was reported Monday afternoon when Leroy Schundmire Jr., 5, son of Mr. and Mrs. Leroy Schundmire, 3759 Jackson Pike, was fatally injured when struck by the automobile of Phil A. List, Williamsport Route 1.

State Highway Patrolman W. J. Winkle said List tried to avoid hitting the child by slowing down and swerving his car to the left. The patrolman said the Schundmire boy was playing in the driveway of his home with his dog when suddenly he ran into the road.

Surviving are the boy's parents, one sister, three brothers and the grandparents.

He was taken to Mt. Carmel Hospital, Columbus, where he died an hour and a half after the accident. Death was caused by a skull fracture.

Frank Clark, Williamsport, suffered leg and hip injuries and Harris Atkins, 258 South Grubb Street, Columbus, face lacerations Monday night when their automobiles collided on the Jackson Pike near the workhouse.

TEACHER TENURE STATUTE FACES TEST IN COURT

COLUMBUS, Jan. 13.—A four way test of the teacher-tenure act passed by the 1941 legislature got under way today when arguments in four appeals were heard by the state supreme court.

To speed both the hearings and the ultimate rulings, the court ordered the battery of 21 lawyers appearing on both sides in the four cases to be prepared for presentation of their causes this morning.

First case on the calendar is one brought by Oscar M. Bishop, a former teacher in the Mount Orab village school district, who has been denied a continuing or life contract. He is represented by two attorneys and the Mount Orab board of education by two firms.

The second case is that of John W. Craig, represented by Ira D. Lucas, against the Cleveland Board of Education.

Scheduled third is the appeal of Verne Lynch against the Springfield Township Rural school district of Summit County, while the fourth case is that of Mrs. Louella May Eisenman against the city of Elyria's board of education.

In all instances, the teachers have been denied continuing or life contracts which cannot be revoked except after a proper hearing of specific charges.

The teacher tenure act provided that contracts must be given by Sept. 1 last, to all teachers who had five successive years of employment under the same board of education at the time the act was passed, except in districts having a school population of less than 800.

and was educated in the United States. He spent four years in the Philippine Islands and served a year and a half in France in the American Army.

After returning from the war, he went to South America, remaining seven years in Chile, three in Bolivia, and ten in Argentina. During this sojourn among the Latin American nations he was engaged mainly in educational and literary work in the Spanish language. He came to know intimately the attitudes and ambitions of the leaders in South America, especially those who were seeking to develop character and idealism in the youth of the various countries.

While in Bolivia, Dr. Stuntz served as correspondent for the Reuter's News Service. He served on the staff of the interpreter-translators for the American delegation at the peace conference in Buenos Aires in 1936. In addition to the responsibilities of his appointments during the decades he was in South America, he traveled extensively throughout that continent and studied its educational systems.

YOUR FEDERAL INCOME TAX

No. 8
Save For Taxes

To make it easier for taxpayers to meet the increased taxes required by the National Defense Program, the Treasury Department is offering for sale two series of notes, both dated August 1, 1941, and maturing August 1, 1943.

In January of each year two new series will be provided, so that a taxpayer can always purchase notes during the entire year in which he is receiving his income for use in payment of taxes due the following year. The reason for the 2-year note is to permit a taxpayer, if he so desires, to begin saving in January of one year and continue through the year to save for his taxes due the following year.

All notes are sold at par and accrued interest. When presented in payment of income taxes they will be received at par and accrued interest up to and including the month in which such taxes are paid. Interest will not accrue beyond the maturity of the notes. If not presented in payment of income taxes, they will be redeemed for cash under certain specified conditions at the purchase price paid for the notes. In other words, the taxpayer if he redeems the notes for cash, gets back just the amount he paid.

Complete information about these Treasury notes will be found in a Treasury Department circular available at local banks, Federal Reserve banks and branches, or Treasury Department, Washington D. C.

2 p. m. in the Pilgrim Holiness Church, Williamsport, the Rev. James G. Miller officiating. Burial will be in Springlawn Cemetery by C. E. Hill. The body will remain at the funeral home where friends may call until the hour of services.

COLONEL LINDBERGH
The colonel's commission discarded last year by Charles Lindbergh while waging his bitter isolationist crusade will be reinstated by the War Department—when his formal application has been received.

As this is written it has not yet reached the War Department. The ex-hero signified his desire to regain his reserve commission in a personal letter to General "Hap" Arnold, chief of the Air Corps and an old friend. It was Arnold who gave out the news story that Lindbergh wanted to be restored to Army rolls.

So far, the War Department knows nothing about it officially. However, when Lindbergh's formal application is received it will be approved and he will be assigned to active duty. Approval will be routine, since under Army Procedure, reserve commissions are reinstated without delay if request is made within 12 months after resignation. After the lapse of a year, such applications are handled just as original requests. But it was only seven months ago that Lindbergh quit.

NOTE: Since the outbreak of war in the Pacific, stripping Army pilots almost daily are performing feats of daring and skill flying big bombers vast distances, that make the first trans-Atlantic flights look like amateur aviation. For military reasons the story of these spectacular flights now cannot be disclosed. But later it will be one of the truly great epics of aviation.

BRASS MINE

The Bureau of Mines recently received a phone call from an official of the OPM metals and minerals division asking about "brass mines."

"What are you trying to do, kid us?" said a BM expert.

"What do you mean, kid you?" protested the OPM'er. "I'm serious. We want to find out all we can about brass mines—how many there are in the country, where located and the total annual production of brass ore."

"Mister, we'd like awfully much to accommodate you," was the flabbergasted reply. "But any schoolboy can tell you that there just is no such animal as a brass mine. Brass is an alloy made chiefly of copper and zinc."

"Oh," was the startled gasp from the OPM end of the line.

NOTE: Testifying before the House Appropriations Committee, David A. Uebelacker, chief of the copper section of the OPM materials division, admitted that he had no previous experience in the copper industry. "I came to the copper branch without any previous knowledge," he said, "other than what general knowledge the average person has." Before coming to Washington, Uebelacker was an engineer.

THE ANTI-CHRISTIANS

OF ALL the suppressions for which Nazi Germany is responsible, few are more notorious than the attempt to uproot Christianity and revert to paganism. This movement, chiefly associated with the fanatical Alfred Rosenberg, savors both of the horrifying and the fantastic.

It is not, however, unparalleled in history. The Soviets made late attempts to destroy the state church. These seem to have proved unavailing. Now that Stalin is appealing to nationalistic forces against his deadly enemy, he finds that the church still survives and has power to move the Russian masses.

An even more impressive parallel is that of the French revolution. That movement's latter days saw a similar effort, the aim being to introduce the worship of the Goddess of Reason. It failed, and soon; it was one of the excesses that helped to bring down the Reign of Terror. Christianity was far too deeply rooted, over a period of many centuries, to be pulled up at one attempt by a group of fanatics, no matter how strongly entrenched in power.

Now we have a second Reign of Terror and a second crusade against Christianity. It is no wild prediction today that this attempt will be as futile and as short-lived as the first.

SILVER CANS

TIN MAY be more rare than gold before this war is over. At least we know the gold is buried at Fort Knox. But scientists have the tin can problem all figured out. There's plenty of silver for the purpose, they say, in both Canada and the United States. Pork and beans may be the main dish at many a meal, but think of all the silver dishes that may come with it.

That flying is wicked, and should not be sought after by man, was the theme of a book published in 1676 by a Frenchman named Galathea. Bombing was not one of his arguments, but he wasn't so far off.

No, Junior, Grandma can't solve the national rubber problem with the rubber plant in her bay window.

Invasion of the U. S. is a very simple matter, says a Japanese newspaper. All right—come on!

WORLD AT A GLANCE

—By— Charles P. Stewart

LOBBYING is rampant in Washington, as well as confusion. Congress has started to investigate. It's about the 'steenth such investigation within the memories of present day lawmakers, but this is an exceptionally lively one, owing to its intermixture into the emergency situation.

Ex-Congressman Charles West of Ohio really precipitated the current outburst by suing to collect his fees from interests for which he claims to have obtained government contracts.

Out-of-town business visitors in the capital undoubtedly do need guides to steer 'em about among the municipality of newly created agencies and it's a legitimate enough service, which has attained plenty of proportions. Lobbying, however, involves "fixing." Some sort of influence is supposed to be exerted by the lobbyist in behalf of his client, and his function is to exert the right kind of it upon the correct officials. It may be political, it may be social and conceivably it could be financial.

A peculiar feature of the latest quiz, and of all those which have preceded it, is that the investigators invariably proceed upon the assumption that it's the lobbyist who's the villain. No attention's paid to the officials, if any, whom he influences. The whole theory is that lobbying is the evil to be probed, not being successfully lobbied.

Small business has an acute interest in the pending inquiry, and so has organized labor. Little industrialists, who can adapt their plants to defensive and lease-lending production, naturally want contracts to assure 'em of priority supplies of raw materials, to keep 'em in operation.

BIGWIGS BETTER LOBBYISTS The government also wants to keep 'em going, instead of having 'em shut down and throw their workers out of employment. Furthermore their collective output's desired, always provided that they are adaptable. There's an evident official tendency, though, to let contracts to the biggest kind of companies. The peewees' version is that this is because the mastodons out-lobby 'em, being able to pay for expensive talent at it.

The official account is that it's more convenient to deal with a monster industry at a single swipe, rather than in detail, with a lot of piquey manufacturers. But the scheme, it's explained, is to have the wholesale contractor take care of as much of his order as his plant's equal to, and sub-order the rest from the little fellows.

For one thing, the big boys don't sub-order as generally as is desired. They prefer to keep their business for themselves, even if they're slow with deliveries.

Some of 'em do sub-order, though. But how, ask the peewees, do they do it? Why, the peewees answer themselves, an elephantine concern gets a huge contract from Uncle Sam at a first rate profit and then sub-orders from a bunch of peewees, at a second or third rate profit to the peewee outfit, and scoops the difference into its own coffers. The peewees have to stand for it or they don't get their sub-contracts, can't get priorities for raw materials, as defensive producers, and consequently can't keep going.

Organized labor's complaint is that it's film-framed by the sub-contracting process.

WHY LABOR OBJECTS The unions, as we all know, want governmental contracting done only with closed shop companies, and officialdom, to appease 'em, sticks to that rule, not 100 percent, but pretty strictly.

Yes, but, say union spokesmen, a whole of an industry, operating on a closed shop basis, gets a contract, and then sub-contracts with a swarm of open shop little critters—open shopness being the essential reason, argue the unionists, why the minnows can afford to let the leviathans assimilate more than their fair share of the profits. Not that the minnows like to acquiesce, but they must, or quit altogether.

The contention is that superior lobbying is what gives big business its alleged stranglehold on the situation. That's what the congressional investigators are investigating. The lobbyists, though, are the causes the inquirers are on the trail of, not lobby-ized officialdom.

Daily Washington Merry-Go-Round

BY DREW PEARSON AND ROBERT S. ALLEN

ELIMINATE DOLLAR-A-YEAR

WASHINGTON — The next report of Senator Harry S. Truman's war contracts investigating committee will be the hottest yet.

Now being prepared by the Missouri Senator and his able chief counsel, Hugh A. Fulton, the report will give OPM a bare-knuckled going-over for failing more effectively to utilize the nation's industrial system for war production.

Truman will flatly demand the elimination of all Dollar-A-Year and "WOC" (without compensation) men as the first step in a top-to-bottom cleanup of the OPM, which he will recommend should be undertaken immediately.

In blasting the Dollar-A-Yearers, the report will charge that many of them, under the pretense of "giving" their services to the government, have in fact exploited their official positions to get juicy contracts for their corporations.

Also, unless a change is made in the Truman-Fulton draft, the report will declare bluntly that many of these Dollar-A-Year men have been undercover lobbyists for their firms.

Equally sensational will be the accusation that a number of them have received substantial increases in the salaries they have continued to draw from their companies while working for the government "for nothing."

Note: OPM now has 246 Dollar-A-Year and "WOC" men on its rolls. It costs the FBI $250 per man to investigate the background of these officials.

HOW THEY DO IT

The report will say that the probe has uncovered no technical violation of the regulation barring OPM officials from handling contracts in which former business associates are interested. However, the report will charge that some Dollar-A-Year men have helped their companies get big-profit contracts by surreptitious devices.

One such device is to give their firms advance tips on orders a tremendous advantage to a bidder. Another is to advise their firms on "how to go about" getting a contract, who to see, the amount to bid, and so on.

Also, the Dollar-A-Year boys are in a position to know of impending shortages of certain materials and to help their companies out by giving them inside information on when and how to stock up.

Truman's report will strongly recommend that the government either pay Dollar-A-Year and "WOC" men regular salaries or get rid of them. As now written, the report declares:

"No man can serve two masters, his company and the government. Human nature being what it is, a Dollar-A-Year man cannot be expected to forget the interests of his company, especially while he is still on the payroll of that company."

Rheumatic Fever Winter Health Problem

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

IN CANADA and the Northern United States, rheumatic fever becomes one of the most serious health problems in winter, probably rivaling pneumonia and the respiratory infections. As one goes south, it is of less frequency and severity.

The reason that rheumatic fever is of such great importance lies not in the fact that it is itself such a deadly disease, but on account of the complications in the heart. About half of all organic heart disease in middle age can be traced to an attack of rheumatic fever in childhood and youth.

Dr. Clending will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

While we know rheumatic fever is due to a germ, this germ has not been identified and we have no preventive serum. We must depend upon attempts to control it through such factors as protection against climatic conditions and poor housing.

Influence of Climate The influence of climate is well shown by the study made by Drs. Paul and Dixon of rheumatic fever on different Indian reservations in the United States and Canada. Dividing these reservations into three groups depending on their geographic locations, we find that in the northern group rheumatic heart diseases occurred at the rate of 9%.

In the middle and more temperate climate, it occurred at the rate of about 4%, and in mild and southern climates it occurred at the rate of less than 1%.

Other factors which enter into the prevalence of rheumatic fever are housing, clothing and damp weather. Still another which was found to be very important in many parts of the country was the presence of protective foods in the diet.

These protective, vitamin-containing foods—milk, eggs, fresh vegetables and fruits, the two latter particularly—are very likely to be neglected in the household which is on a limited budget.

Infected tonsils and to a certain extent teeth, are also found to be causative factors.

Importance of Rest As to treatment, it is not possible to place too much insistence on the enjoyment of rest for a long period after the attack has subsided.

In the acute period the infection attacks the joints, causing fever, sweating and pain. When this is over, the patient feels so good that he usually wants to get up, but wise care demands that these patients should spend at least six weeks in bed after the subsidence of all joint symptoms.

This was once dramatically presented to me in my practice in the case of two children whose families lived next door to each other. Both children were attacked almost at the same time with rheumatic fever. Both had a mild course and in both cases the families were advised to keep the children in bed for the minimal period of six weeks.

Two Cases One family was impressed with the necessity of this and carried it out faithfully; in fact the little boy stayed in bed, in spite of his protests, for about three months.

In the other family vigilance was relaxed after a week, and within two weeks the child was up and engaged in his usual round of activities, which as is usual in childhood, were very vigorous.

I was able to follow these children for over ten years. The little boy who was kept in bed for three months never developed any heart complications of rheumatic fever, and when last heard of was healthy and vigorous. In the case of the child who got up too soon, another attack came about three years later and within six weeks there were unmistakable evidences of impairment of the valves of the heart.

Of course, this might have happened even if precautions had been taken during the entire convalescent period, but that is not the general experience and as I say, the two cases are a striking example of this one factor in the management of acute rheumatic fever.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS J. S.—"Is it dangerous to have tonsils removed by an electric needle?"

Answer: Tonsils can be removed successfully in this way, but it must be done by one who has had considerable experience. There are several other better ways of removing the tonsils.

EDITOR'S NOTE: Dr. Clending has seven pamphlets which can be obtained by readers. Each pamphlet sells for 10 cents. The pamphlets are: "The Diet of Rheumatic Diet," "Indigestion and Constipation," "Reducing and Gaining," "Infant Feeding," "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes," "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin."

SYNOPSIS

MOLLA GLENDON comes to New York, seeking refuge from the war that has swept across her native Norway, and from the bombs that shattered London, where she had fled from Oslo. She goes to work in the office of the Whitworth Construction company.

BURTON WHITWORTH, head of the company, was a friend of her deceased father. Molla meets TAYLOR WHITWORTH, handsome and dashing son of Burton, and NEIL LUNDQUIST, young field engineer of the company.

KURT WILHELM, escapee from a Canadian internment camp, appears in New York to bedevil Molla.

YESTERDAY: Molla wonders how and when Kurt will see her.

CHAPTER TWELVE

AT BREAKFAST the next morning Burton Whitworth waved a grapefruit spoon expressively at his wife.

"Aggie, you missed the thrill of your life last night. That girl was—well, she was the most beautiful thing you ever saw. Better than Henie, Better than Henie, I say. Er—by the way, your cold—is it any better?"

Agatha fixed him with a baleful eye. "Burton, my cold is no better, no worse than it was last evening, if you must be solicitous; I just wasn't interested in attending—and I do not like your gentle whimsy lately of calling me Aggie!"

"Oh, come now—everyone called you that in your younger days."

"Burton, I am only 48. You sound as though you were thinking of giving me a card."

Burton Whitworth, amused, started to say something, but Tay and Neil came in just then, with Tay waving a newspaper.

"Boy, did she get the raves this morning. Look at this—just look at this. 'Beautiful Norwegian Refugee Thrills Crowd at Red Cross Ice Benefit.'"

Tay smacked the paper with the back of his hand. "Our Molla. Some stuff, hey Pop?"

Agatha curdled. "OUR Molla? What proprietary interest do you have in the girl, Taylor, and MIST you show such enthusiasm? You don't see Neil bursting at the seams, as it were."

Tay sidled over and kissed her on the cheek. "Oh, Neil never was the appreciative sort. Mother. Lacks imagination."

Neil Lundquist registered mock indignation. "You wretch. You're as wrong as two and two making five. I think she's wonderful, not only as a skater, but as a person. She's a grand girl to have gone through what she has and still come up smiling."

"Oh, so you, too," Agatha said frigidly.

"Now see here, Mother. Let's come to an understanding about this thing!" Burton Whitworth tossed his napkin aside angrily. "I'm not going to do much about forcing you to like a situation for which you have no particular relish, but please don't try to destroy our ideals on the matter. I believe Taylor and I are pretty well set on them. And Neil, of course, is even more entitled to his private opinions. And now if you'll excuse me please."

He started from the dining room, came back and took the paper from Tay. "If you're through, let me take a whirl at it."

"Well," said Agatha. "Well, indeed!"

Tay looked at Neil and winked broadly.

Molla was awakened by someone knocking at the door. It was Mrs. Cassidy. "Telephone, Miss Glendon. Will you take it or shall I have them call back?"

Molla sat up quickly. "Oh, no—I'll answer in a minute."

She scrambled into her robe, took a few quick passes at her hair and rushed to the extension in the hall. "Hello," she said quickly. "This is Molla."

"... and this is Kurt Wilhelm. Is the lovely fraulein refreshed after a good night's sleep?"

Molla's heart leaped. Yes, it was he. It was the same, soft, melodious voice.

"Hello, Kurt—it—it is strange to hear your voice again. I did not know—"

He interrupted with a laugh. "You did not know many things, Molla. But you can find out. You would like to, would you not? Good—then shall I expect the honor of your having dinner with me tonight? Good. At seven, then."

She listened, dumbly, as he told her where to meet him. Molla hung up and returned to her room. End had brought in the Sunday papers, opened to the story of the Red Cross Benefit show. Molla glanced at them idly, but that was all.

She left the house shortly after six, took a Lexington avenue subway, and got off at East Eighty-sixth street, uptown. She found the place in a few minutes. It was small and clean looking and smelled good.

Molla was surprised when a waiter approached her immediately, bowed and murmured, "Toward the rear, please."

He led her past a few tables and then Molla stopped short. Kurt Wilhelm stood up. He was about 30, blond and quite handsome. Only a small scar over one eye marred the small smile he gave Molla.

"So—it is like old times." He held the chair for her as she sat down.

"Kurt," The word caught in her throat as she gazed almost hypnotically at the man across from her.

"Kurt, tell me. I thought—" "But of course. No doubt you had heard before you sailed that I was in Canada. Shall we say—detained in Canada?"

He lit a cigaret and laughed.

OF ALL the suppressions for which Nazi Germany is responsible, few are more notorious than the attempt to uproot Christianity and revert to paganism. This movement, chiefly associated with the fanatical Alfred Rosenberg, savors both of the horrifying and the fantastic.

It is not, however, unparalleled in history. The Soviets made like attempts to destroy the state church. These seem to have proved unavailing. Now that Stalin is appealing to nationalistic forces against his deadly enemy, he finds that the church still survives and has power to move the Russian masses.

An even more impressive parallel is that of the French revolution. That movement's latter days saw a similar effort, the aim being to introduce the worship of the Goddess of Reason. It failed, and soon; it was one of the excesses that helped to bring down the Reign of Terror. Christianity was far too deeply rooted, over a period of many centuries, to be pulled up at one attempt by a group of fanatics, no matter how strongly entrenched in power.

Now we have a second Reign of Terror and a second crusade against Christianity. It is no wild prediction today that this attempt will be as futile and as short-lived as the first.

WORLD AT A GLANCE

LOBBYING is rampant in Washington, as well as confusion. Congress has started to investigate. It's about the twentieth such investigation within the memories of present day lawmakers, but this is an exceptionally lively one, owing to its intermixture into the emergency situation.

Ex-Congressman Charles West of Ohio really precipitated the current outburst by suing to collect his fees from interests for which he claims to have obtained government contracts.

Out-of-town business visitors in the capital undoubtedly do need guides to steer 'em about among the municipality of newly created agencies and it's a legitimate enough service, which has attained plenty of proportions. Lobbying, however, involves "fixing." Some sort of influence is supposed to be exerted by the lobbyist in behalf of his client, and his function is to exert the right kind of it upon the correct officials. It may be political, it may be social and conceivably it could be financial.

A peculiar feature of the latest quiz, and of all those which have preceded it, is that the investigators invariably proceed upon the assumption that it's the lobbyist who's the villain. No attention's paid to the officials, if any, whom he influences. The whole theory is that lobbying is the evil to be probed, not being successfully lobbied.

Small business has an acute interest in the pending inquiry, and so has organized labor. Little industrialists, who can adapt their plants to defensive and lease-lending production, naturally want contracts to assure 'em of priority supplies of raw materials, to keep 'em in operation.

BIGWIGS BETTER LOBBYISTS
The government also wants to keep 'em going, instead of having 'em shut down and throw their workers out of employment. Furthermore their collective output's desired, always provided that they are adaptable. There's an evident official tendency, though, to let contracts to the biggest kind of companies. The peewees' version is that this is because the mastodon out-lobby 'em, being able to pay for expensive talent at it.

The official account is that it's more convenient to deal with a monster industry at a single swipe, rather than in detail, with a lot of petyune manufacturers. But the scheme, it's explained, is to have the wholesale contractor take care of as much of his order as his plant's equal to, and sub-order the rest from the little fellows.

For one thing the big boys don't sub-order as generally as is desired. They prefer to keep their business for themselves, even if they're slow with deliveries.

Some of 'em do sub-order, though. But how ask the peewees do they do it? Why, the peewees answer themselves, an elephantine concern gets a huge contract from Uncle Sam at a

ELIMINATE DOLLAR-A-YEAR
WASHINGTON — The next report of Senator Harry S. Truman's war contracts investigating committee will be the hottest yet.

Now being prepared by the Missouri Senator and his able chief counsel, Hugh A. Fulton, the report will give OPM a bare-knuckled going-over for failing more effectively to utilize the nation's industrial system for war production.

Truman will flatly demand the elimination of all Dollar-A-Year and "WOC" (without compensation) men as the first step in a top-to-bottom cleanup of the OPM, which he will recommend should be undertaken immediately.

In blasting the Dollar-A-Yearers, the report will charge that many of them, under the pretense of "giving" their services to the government, have in fact exploited their official positions to get juicy contracts for their corporations.

Also, unless a change is made in the Truman-Fulton draft, the report will declare bluntly that many of these Dollar-A-Year men have been undercover lobbyists for their firms.

Equally sensational will be the accusation that a number of them have received substantial increases in the salaries they have continued to draw from their companies while working for the government "for nothing."

Note: OPM now has 246 Dollar-A-Year and "WOC" men on its rolls. It costs the FBI $250 per man to investigate the background of these officials.

HOW THEY DO IT
The report will say that the probe has uncovered no technical violation of the regulation barring OPM officials from handling contracts in which former business associates are interested. However, the report will charge that some Dollar-A-Year men have helped their companies get big-profit contracts by surreptitious devices.

One such device is to give their firms advance tips on orders a tremendous advantage to a bidder. Another is to advise their firms on "how to go about" getting a contract, who to see, the amount to bid, and so on.

Also, the Dollar-A-Year boys are in a position to know of impending shortages of certain materials and to help their companies out by giving them inside information on when and how to stock up.

Truman's report will strongly recommend that the government either pay Dollar-A-Year and "WOC" men regular salaries or get rid of them. As now written, the report declares:

"No man can serve two masters, his company and the government. Human nature being what it is, a Dollar-A-Year man cannot be expected to forget the interests of his company, especially while he is still on the payroll of that company."

"Hello," she said quickly. "This is Molla . . ."

. . . and this is Kurt Wilhelm. Is the lovely fraulein refreshed after a good night's sleep?"

Molla's heart leaped. Yes, it was he. It was the same, soft, melodious voice.

"Hello, Kurt—it is strange to hear your voice again. I did not know—"

He interrupted with a laugh. "You did not know many things, Molla. But you can find out. You would like to, would you not? Good—then shall I expect the honor of your having dinner with me tonight? Good. At seven, then."

She listened, dumbly, as he told her where to meet him. Molla hung up and returned to her room. Enid had brought in the Sunday papers, opened to the story of the Red Cross Benefit show. Molla glanced at them idly, but that was all.

She left the house shortly after six, took a Lexington avenue subway, and got off at East Eighty-sixth street, uptown. She found the place in a few minutes. It was small and clean looking and smelled good.

Molla was surprised when a waiter approached her immediately, bowed and murmured, "Toward the rear, please."

He led her past a few tables and then Molla stopped short. Kurt Wilhelm stood up. He was about 30, blond and quite handsome. Only a small scar over one eye marred the small smile he gave Molla.

"So—it is like old times," he held the chair for her as she sat down.

"Kurt," the word caught in her throat as she gazed almost hypnotically at the man across from her.

"Kurt, tell me. I thought—" "But of course. No doubt you had heard before you sailed that I was in Canada. Shall we say—detained in Canada?"

He lit a cigaret and laughed.

EXCELLENT augury for progress and highly productive effort is read from this day's lunar transits. It should be a propitious time to make a swift start with new and ambitious projects, particularly if they involve change, travel, correspondence, dealing with lawyers, agencies and the public. The latter contact should be notably successful and gratifying.

Those whose birthday it is may anticipate a very lively and progressive year, with large and important new projects bringing unexpected results. This applies especially to all pertaining to travel, writings, litigation, agencies and communications of any nature, as well as business and professional aims. Public, community and group relations should flourish and bring prestige. It would be well not to let good judgment be overruled by over-enthusiasm.

FOOD TIPS
FROM THE COOKBOOKLETS

Menu Planning Results in Pleasant
Cookbooklet Meals the Year Round

An attractive buffet serving such as this can be obtained only through careful planning. The 20th Cookbooklet, released this week, gives Menu suggestions for every day of the year.

Almost anyone can serve up a hap-hazard assortment of food to appease the appetite. But the good housewife, knowing the effect of food upon our health and vitality as well as our social life and pocketbooks, has found that it pays to plan ahead. The last in the series of 20 Cookbooklets released tells how to schedule Menus for every day in the year. With their help you can include plenty of the most healthful foods, and at the same time figure how to make use of leftovers, allow for unexpected guests, and still come out even at the end of the week!

Nutrition and variety have been stressed in the new Cookbooklet menus, and the recipes are all to be found in the preceding 19 recipe booklets. To make the Menu Book even more helpful, numbers after each suggested recipe, refer you directly to the book in which it may be found.

Starting with January, menus are outlined for every day of each month in the year. Appropriate menu suggestions are given for special holidays, and seasonal dishes are stressed in turn. Dinners and luncheons are outlined in detail, while a separate section of the booklet offers heavy and light breakfasts for summer and winter. Brunches, those popular combinations of breakfast and lunch, and wedding breakfasts are given special treatment.

Just to make sure that none of your special requirements are neglected, the Menu Cookbooklet also suggests a Progressive Breakfast, a Treasure Hunt Breakfast, and other special first-meals-of-the-day to be served in the garden, at camp, or on Labor Day, May Day or the Fourth of July.

Numerous photographic illustrations add to the utility as well as the beauty of the 20th Cookbooklet. They show the proper settings of special tables, such as called Sunday on Mrs. Hattie Huffer, who is seriously ill.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Stoughton and son, near Lancaster, visited her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Nelson Valentine and son, George, Sunday.

Loring Creager of Circleville visited Mr. and Mrs. Benton Fausnaugh and Mr. and Mrs. Russell Creager, Tuesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Gale Creager visited Mr. and Mrs. Warrick Van Cleave of Amanda, Thursday.

FOOD TIPS FROM THE COOKBOOKLETS

Menu Planning Results in Pleasant Cookbooklet Meals the Year Round

An attractive buffet serving such as this can be obtained only through careful planning. The 20th Cookbooklet, released this week, gives Menu suggestions for every day of the year.

Almost anyone can serve up a wedding breakfast table, and portray many of the dishes given in the menus, so that you can see just how good they will look on your table.

Cookbooklets may be obtained by presenting ten cents for each at any of these stores: North End Market, Griffith & Martin, Weiler's Grocery, Brink's Market, Harpster & Yost Hardware, Glitt's Food Market, Blue & White Malted Milk, Wallace Bakery, Steele's Produce, R. & R. Furniture Company, Hill Implement Company, Clarence Wolf Grocery, or Glitt's Grocery and Meat Market.

SCIO TO TWP. SCHOOL NEWS

The January P.T.A. meeting was held in the auditorium on the eighth. The Conservation Club of Scioto was to sponsor the program for this meeting. The program consisted of a movie on conservation which was entitled "River". The background was based on war defense. Mr. Webb, the conservation agent of this county, also attended the meeting. The members of the P.T.A. decided to donate $5 for the Red Cross.

Frank Wilkins, our janitor, was injured Wednesday evening, January 7, when his car and another car hit. Mr. Wilkins received several severe bruises.

Gladys Bowshier, a senior of Scioto, was selected to represent our school in the 1942 Good Citizenship Pilgrimage Contest which is to be held at Circleville, February 7, at 10 a. m. Isabel McGhee was selected as alternative.

Tryouts were held to see who would get to play the bell lyra in the newly organized band. Bertha Painter and Esther Lawless were selected. Tryouts for the octet will be held Monday.

The members of the Senior Class regret the loss of a classmate Maxine Drake, who has attended Scioto school for the last nine years. Maxine is moving to Pike County, where she will attend Beaver Township School. She has been an active member in both the Senior Class and the Newspaper Club.

Again this year, the Farmers' Institute committeemen are sponsoring a local poster contest for all pupils of Scioto. These posters must advertise the local institute which is to be held February 13 and 14 in the auditorium. The posters must be the work of the pupil.

Betty Jeanne Krieger, a junior of Scioto, sang two vocal solos at the wedding of Miss Lillie Margaret Wilson, a 1938 graduate of Scioto, who became the bride of Robert Glover from Chicago.

ATHLETIC CLUB LOSES, 39 TO 37

Magnetic Springs Outfit Takes Overtime Tilt; Youngsters Play

Circleville Athletic Club cagers lost a tough 39-37 contest Monday evening to the Magnetic Springs team on the latter's court. The Circleville crew was an easy victory in a game played here several weeks ago.

The game went into overtime after finishing in a 35-35 deadlock, but Magnetic Springs was able to get four points against two for the locals in the extra period.

The winners held a 19-10 edge at halftime.

Harold Smith topped the C.A.C. crew with 12 points. Jim Callihan getting eight and Johnny Anderson the same number.

The C.A.C. took a rimming in the overtime period when three technical fouls were called on its players and followers. Manager Johnny Heiskell was fined once for making too much noise on the bench.

Lack of height handicapped the Circleville team, but the ex-high athletes who performed put up a real scrap.

C.A.C., which played without several of its outstanding stars Monday evening, will be at full strength Thursday evening when the Fort Hayes team, comprised of Uncle Sam's soldiers, comes here for an engagement.

ATHLETIC CLUB

LOSES, 39 TO 37

Magnetic Springs Outfit Takes Overtime Tilt; Youngsters Play

Circleville Athletic Club cagers lost a tough 39-37 contest Monday evening to the Magnetic Springs team on the latter's court. The Circleville crew was an easy victory in a game played here several weeks ago.

The game went into overtime after finishing in a 35-35 deadlock, but Magnetic Springs was able to get four points against two for the locals in the extra period.

The winners held a 19-10 edge at halftime.

Harold Smith topped the C.A.C. crew with 12 points, Jim Callihan getting eight and Johnny Anderson the same number.

The C.A.C. took a rimming in the overtime period when three technical fouls were called on its players and followers. Manager Johnny Heiskell was fined once for making too much noise on the bench.

Lack of height handicapped the Circleville team, but the ex-high athletes who performed put up a real scrap.

C.A.C. which played without several of its outstanding stars Monday evening, will be at full strength Thursday evening when the Fort Hayes team, comprised of Uncle Sam's soldiers, comes here for an engagement.

Louis Is Fit, Prepares To Begin Army Training

NEW YORK, Jan. 13.—Joe Louis has switched his fighting headquarters from Uncle Mike's to Uncle Sam's and tomorrow at Camp Upton will be inducted into the Army as Pvt. Joe Louis Barrow.

Having passed physical examinations at Governor's Island yesterday, the heavyweight champion expressed himself as eager to get into a uniform.

"Let's get at those Japs," Joe said as he concluded his "workout" before the Army men.

Weighing 215 pounds, compared with the 206 1/2 of last Friday night when he belted out Buddy Baer in a round for the Navy Relief Fund, he was worried over the possibility of flat feet keeping him out, but was given an okeh from "head to foot," and pronounced himself "ready to go wherever they want me."

He was besieged by other prospective soldiers and those already in the service when he appeared for these first formalities, and was stamped for autographs by the onlookers and for pictures and statements by a half hundred photographers and reporters.

He enjoyed himself through it all and seemed eager to get through the induction proper tomorrow. It might have been just another weigh-in for a title defense.

When they started filling in the records, and asked his name, he said:

"Joe Louis Barrow."

"Occupation?"

"Fightin'," Joe replied. "I used to fight for Uncle Mike Jacobs, but now I'm going to do it for Uncle Sam."

After returning to New York from Fort Jay, Louis went immediately to the office of Lieut. Commander Gene Tunney, ex-marine, who retired undefeated as the heavyweight champion and now is busily engaged in helping the Navy build up recreation and physical fitness.

Tunney greeted Louis warmly and congratulated him on his decision to get into the Army here immediately instead of returning to Chicago for his draft call.

Tunney also took occasion at the same time to denounce the molly-coddling of men now in the service.

A marine in Europe in the last war and twice winner over the great Jack Dempsey in the ring, Tunney feels that the men being prepared for this war need "less attention from fawning hostesses and more play areas for vigorous athletic activities. They need fewer cigarettes and luxuries and more boxing gloves and skipping ropes," he said.

LOS ANGELES, Jan. 13.—Tied for first place in the seventeenth annual Los Angeles $10,000 Golf open tournament at Hillcrest Country Club, Jimmy Thomson and Ben Hogan, with 72-hole scores of 282, were to clash today in an 18-hole playoff round.

The playoff carries with it $3,500 first prize money with the runner-up getting a $1,700 second prize check and with each getting 25 percent of the total of today's gallery fees.

Yesterday's final drive for top money saw Hogan of White Plains, N. Y., golf's top money winner of 1941, birdieing the last hole and turning in a 70 and Thomson, Del Monte professional, chalking up a 69.

Sam Snead of Hot Springs, Va., saw the title slip through his fingers at the last hole when he took a heartbreaking eight in a blowup similar to the story of his collapse in the final round of the 1939 National Open at Philadelphia.

Snead found himself locked in a three-way tie for third place with a total of 285. Sharing the spot with him were sensational young Chick Harbert of Battle Creek, Mich., and the 54-hole leader, Harry Cooper of Chicago, with 285's. Each received $900 checks.

Willie Goggin of White Plains, Byron Nelson, Toledo, and Chandler Harper, Portsmouth, Va., tied with totals of 288 and received $350 each for their fourth place showing.

President's Ball To Be Conducted January 29

Memorial Hall To Be Scene Of Event At Aid Polio Fight

ORCHESTRA IS SIGNED Postmen To Help Combat Disease With 'March Of Dimes' Cards

Circleville will conduct a President's Birthday Ball Thursday, January 29, in Memorial Hall.

Fred C. Clark, chairman of the committee in charge, announced Tuesday that plans were being completed to raise funds for the local campaign against Infantile Paralysis by holding the annual President's Birthday Ball and by organizing county-wide chapter to function as a part of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Bob Milo's band, featuring Carl Hunn at the piano, has been secured for the occasion. The dance will be informal and there will be no decorations. Other members of the committee are Ernest Weller, Mrs. Orion King, Judge Lemuel Weldon, Dr. D. V. Court-right, George D. McDowell and Delos C. Marcy. The American Legion Auxiliary will have charge of the lunch.

Meanwhile, local mail carriers have consented to carry "March of Dimes" cards to residents of the city and county. The cards hold ten dimes and may be obtained from any of the carriers.

On January 23, persons throughout the city and county will be called to a meeting at the Court House to organize a local Infantile Paralysis chapter. Each local chapter assists those afflicted with Infantile Paralysis, regardless of age, race, color or creed, in the area it serves. The assistance includes providing orthopedic equipment and training, and financial assistance for payment of hospital expenses for patients in need of that care. During epidemics the volunteer workers not only aid those stricken by the disease but also work with doctors and public health officials.

One half of the money raised is left with the county in which it is contributed. There it is used by the local chapter to finance its services. The remainder of the funds is used by the National Foundation to carry on its work in research.

Mr. Clark again urges persons to drop their change in the Infantile Paralysis safe placed at Main and Court Streets.

94 LOSE LIVES

were sighted by a flying boat on patrol and the plane's crew directed naval craft to the rescue.

Rescuers found loss of life high with one Chinese the only survivor in one boatload of 39 persons.

Lifeboats and life rafts were launched as rapidly as possible but some of those who escaped to them were ill-clad for the fury of the North Atlantic in January and during the next 20 hours, many of them froze to death.

Friendly craft attracted to the spot in unknown manner after the passage of many hours, picked up the survivors.

Among the rescued were 23 white persons and 66 Chinese.

Most of the ship's crew and passengers were Chinese, it was reported.

Four white members of the crew and about 90 Chinese were said by survivors, to have died, either of exposure, drowning or trapped aboard the doomed ship.

U. S. BATTERIES PROVE SUPERIOR IN ISLAND WAR

The invaders chose to attack Gen. McArthur's ground defenses for three successive days without appreciable aid from the air.

Observers concluded that Japan does not possess a sufficient quantity of planes to operate simultaneously in the Philippines and on other fronts.

In this connection, it was pointed out that while the battle of Luzon was being waged mostly with artillery and infantry, the Japs freely used air weapons to inaugurate the duel for the Dutch East Indies.

Tacticians said that Japan probably was forced to divert the planes previously used in the Philippines over to the Indies invasion. They explained that while air power would be an important adjunct to the Luzon offensive, it was an imperative need in the Indies attack, where bombers covered Japanese landing parties.

Elsewhere on the war front, an investigation was opening into the origin of a fire which destroyed the U. S. Army transport Clevedon in Alaskan waters.

Indications were that the 7,314-ton vessel was engaged in transporting supplies and men to the nation's Alaskan outposts. All personnel on the boat were rescued, but the cargo, according to the War Department, was a complete loss.

There was no hint of the ship's location when the fire broke out, but War Department spokesmen intimated a belief that the boat was docked.

WAR TODAY

frigates and privateers in the war of 1812, when the destructive raids of these small craft compelled Britain to sign a peace on favorable terms.

More lately "cruiser warfare" has fallen into disfavor in naval circles, where the destruction of main enemy naval forces by heavy fleet action has become the predominant doctrine.

Of course such complete victory over the Japanese main fleets would be most desirable, but heavy fleets of superdreadnaughts cannot operate at extreme ranges from their bases, and the distance of British and American bases from the Japanese Islands appears to preclude a decisive battle between main fleets until such bases can be constructed.

Up U. S. Alley
Meantime "cruiser war" seems to be the United States' dish. The vast extension of Japanese transportation lines and the thin spreading of Japan's resources afford a made-to-order opportunity for a modern campaign of harrying and destruction.

Today's dispatches from the Philippines is an illustration of how thin Japan's air forces have been spread. The Mikado's air force is reputed to possess about 1,000 dive bombers, including somewhat obsolete types, but it would seem that demands for these sorts of air fighters from other fronts have compelled their transfer while the battle for Corregidor is still at its height.

It takes no expert to perceive at a glance the vulnerability of the vast system of sea-borne transportation Japan has been forced to build up, and must maintain, to carry out the tremendous land, sea and air blitzkrieg she has undertaken.

She has been obliged to fight at Wake, about 2,000 miles away and probably must still maintain a powerful naval scouting force in the nearby Marshall and Caroline Islands. To the Philippines is another 2,000 miles, and Hong Kong is equally far.

GREECE'S EXILED KING TO VISIT WASHINGTON

LONDON, Jan. 13 — King George II of Greece and Premier Emanuel Tsouderos of the Greek government-in-exile will visit the United States soon at the invitation of President Roosevelt.

ALLIED NATIONS READY TO BLAST NIPPON TROOPS

London "Guesses" Change In Situation Can Be Expected Soon

was that practically everyone in London was doing plenty of guessing.

SINGAPORE, Jan. 13—A powerful anti-axis aerial offensive on the Malayan Front was anticipated today with indications that strong reinforcements of planes and airmen already have reached Singapore.

A high British authority predicted that the United forces will have "air superiority over the Japanese within three days."

Meanwhile, Japanese forces were hammering at new British defense lines in western Malaya only 150 miles from Singapore.

But this great Far Eastern base's strengthened air defenses were reflected in an announcement that Netherlands East Indies planes shot down three Jap bombers during repeated enemy raids over Singapore yesterday.

Formations Split

These Jap assaults were declared to have caused no appreciable damage and only a few casualties. The Jap raiders came over the island base in two formations—the second consisting of 24 planes—but were scattered quickly by anti-aircraft fire and fighter patrols.

It was reported that a total of 125 Japanese bombers and fighters participated in yesterday's raid on Singapore. British fighters were said to have shot down at least six of the raiders and probably four more.

BATAVIA, Jan. 13—The Dutch East Indies high command today conceded loss of the tiny island of Tarakan off the North Borneo coast, but announced direct hits on two additional Japanese transports by N. E. I. bombing planes. This brought to four the number of Jap transports hit within the last 48 hours by planes of the combined United Nations air forces. In addition, two Jap cruisers were hit and a "near miss" scored on a destroyer.

(Editor's Note: A "near miss" is the dropping of a bomb sufficiently close to a naval target that its explosion under water might conceivably spring a seam or do other damage to the vessel.)

Tarakan Given Up
It was apparent from the start that no concerted attempt to save Tarakan from the overwhelming Jap forces was to be made. The garrison there consisted only of a small "demolition squad," charged with destroying all installations and oil supplies before handing the little island over to the invaders.

A new communique clearly revealed that the N. E. I. intends to give the yellow occupants of Tarakan no respite and in collaboration with American and Australian fliers, plans to harass without cessation all enemy attempts to bring up reinforcements.

GERMANS CALLING UP MORE MEN FOR ARMY

FUEHRER WILL REBUILD MUNICH

least the secret remains that of a few dozen around him. It is all in this blueprint in the Fuehrer House in Munich, carefully drawn to meet every condition or qualification this man Hitler believes will fasten that mystic hold of his on the people within Germany after he dies.

This blueprint, if ever it materializes, visualizes a great square in Munich on the spot where the city's present central railway station is located. All these tracks, all these rambling low buildings of the station, and scores of big hotels and buildings immediately facing it vanish from sight on that blueprint.

Planned Avenue With Vast Arch

From the huge square emerging here would unfold also an avenue of majestic proportions leading straight through the city to the historic street and square down which he and his brown-shirted Nazis walked in 1923, to meet a blast of machine guns and there with the end for another ten years of their beer hall putsch. On that blueprint it is to be an avenue with an arch such as only the Caesars dreamed of. Hundreds of houses which would have to be razed on either side never offered its draughtsman a moment's qualm of conscience.

As Hitler designed it with that ever busy pencil of his, a great squat and square mausoleum is to rise in the exact center of that Munich square, forming the basic mantle of a gigantic square column to rise some seven hundred feet into the air. On top of that column is to stand a great Nazi eagle holding the swastika in its claws. The spread of the wings, according to the specifications on that blueprint, from one tip to the other would measure 225 feet.

Columns and pillars, like the Roman temples of old, would provide the chief architectural relief to the eye in the vast structure of the mausoleum.

Inside, and thus actually inside the holy column above, the sarcophagus of Fuehrer I. of the Third Reich would stand on a high pedestal. It would be a mastery work of German stone and artisanship, simple in its exterior design but impressive to the eye.

24-Hour Guard

Here, amidst the eagles and flags and wreaths of Nazidom, guarded day and night by steel helmeted men who marched with him or the sons who come after them, Hitler could lie and keep his hold on the masses.

As far as I know, he had not yet definitely decided whether it would serve his purpose best to follow the method of Lenin in Red Square in Moscow and give the pilgrims to the shrine a glimpse of himself through a glass aperture.

There are many around him—he consults or used to with astrologers and psychologists alike on this point—who are inclined to believe that mystery and the unseen are more powerful than the opposite.

One school of thought in the Reich, for example, is convinced that the actual sight of Lenin's body under its glass case in Moscow detracted from the mystic effect desired and secured largely a physical reaction.

This school feels strongly, too, that with a glass aperture the crowd filing past naturally would stare only through the glass and fail to get into the spirit of its surroundings. In fact, they say, the average man or woman in their eager and excited state of mind at seeing Fuehrer Hitler through the glass probably would never notice or glance at anything else around there.

Spectacular Decoration Planned

Be that as it may, an important role would naturally be played by the atmosphere of appropriate decoration surrounding the tomb. There is an idea for the moment of huge torches burning in eternal flame of red fire, the smoke being drawn off through special air filters but nevertheless offering just a touch of incense.

The soft blue light always filtering on the tomb of old Emperor William I in Berlin—so famous and effective that tourists from all over the world used

To Relieve Misery of COLDS
Take 666
LIQUID, TABLETS, SALVE, NOSE DROPS

to make a bee-line for it—also has come into consideration. There would be a specially sound-proof floor, carefully designed to deaden the footfalls of the passing crowd and thus to preserve the glorified silence.

Leading into and away from the shrine itself would be the doors into the various antechambers comprising in part the museums and exhibition rooms of the things held most sacred to Nazidom. There could be seen, in one section of the structure, all the uniforms and personal things used by the Fuehrer in life. The boots, the hats, the caps, the shoes. In a special glass case the iron cross he won in World War I, and perhaps the Nazi Party button he originally put on as Party Member Number 7 back there in the roaring days of Munich of the Buergerbrauekeller and street fights with Communists.

Display of Hitler's Paintings

Another case no doubt would show the Fuehrer's pen and ink sketches and the watercolors drawn by him in the lean and hungry days before the World War and later in the trenches, sold for a pittance until he came to power, when the price for each of them went sky high and the Nazis combed out all art shops and attics in the hope of raking up every last one of them.

Those and the designs for his highways and Nazi edifices now standing around all over Germany as laid down on paper by him will all be in a glass case in that exhibition room.

The idea would be to let the visitor see for himself the Fuehrer as he was in private life and as the leader, always stressing the simplicity and the miracle of this man.

It would be effective preparation on the mental side and indelible stamp into the mind that here in the shrine next door lay more than just an ordinary mortal. It was to be a privilege to the wandering pilgrim to come near him, even as it was in life.

Why Munich Was Chosen

It is but natural, therefore, that he should choose Munich instead of Berlin for his final resting place and as the spot best adopted to the plan in mind. His Brown House of early days still stands there as a decade ago; alongside of it, facing the great Koenigsplatz, he has changed everything by building the temples to his sixteen dead killed in the putsch of 1923 and also the Fuehrer House, a lavish edifice now used by him for official receptions and as headquarters down south of the Nazi Party.

In Munich also Hitler still has that private little apartment of his over a former garage in one of the side streets. That is where he lived when money was short and times were uncertain. He drank beer then and ate dry bread with sausage, even that much was frequently sent to him as a gift by friends who knew that his gaunt cheeks were not from internal illness or overeating.

The Bavarian furniture and fittings inside that little apartment remain the same today as they were then; it is one of those sentimental things about Hitler which no power and no glory in the world can change. He has his moments, and at such times he likes to get back into a state of mind what we over here would call being yourself. It doesn't last long and it only happens when a few privileged cronies of his old days are around. Then he talks freely and sometimes even tells a joke.

Hotbed Of Anti-Nazidism

Hitler clings to Munich like a desperate man in love with the wife he is losing. That is the whole irony of it, for the saying goes in Germany that Black Bavaria harbors more Nazi-haters and Hitler foes per square inch than all the rest of the Reich combined. The hotbed of this anti-Nazidism is without question Munich itself; where the stolid Bavarian of largely Catholic faith and the more liberal-minded artist and student class of people like to take life easy and shake hands under the table against the Nazis.

Perhaps more has happened or almost happened to Hitler in attempts on his life in Munich than anywhere else, to mention only the bomb blast in the beer cellar of 1939 or the shots from windows as he drove through the streets not many years ago. Even the trains he arrived on have had accidents in the Munich railway station, but his luck held out and they missed him.

Despite it all, Hitler has that fatal love for Munich and Bavaria, perhaps because it is close to his own Austria, and therefore he has chosen to lie after death in the midst of that city to keep his mystic hold on the Germans.

That is, if his luck holds out and the war he is fighting doesn't knock him for a loop or ends with him in flight and his Third Reich in ruins. According to his own sworn oath before the Reichstag, he does not intend to come out alive from a lost war and if and when the time comes to assume that we over here in America, have beaten him, then we have the right to remind him of that fatal oath.

President's Ball To Be Conducted January 29

Memorial Hall To Be Scene Of Event At Aid Polio Fight

ORCHESTRA IS SIGNED

Postmen To Help Combat Disease With 'March Of Dimes' Cards

Circleville will conduct a President's Birthday Ball Thursday, January 29, in Memorial Hall.

Fred C. Clark, chairman of the committee in charge, announced Tuesday that plans were being completed to raise funds for the local campaign against Infantile Paralysis by holding the annual President's Birthday Ball and by organizing county-wide chapter to function as a part of the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis.

Bob Milo's band, featuring Carl Hunn at the piano, has been secured for the occasion. The dance will be informal and there will be no decorations. Other members of the committee are Ernest Weller, Mrs. Orion King, Judge Lemuel Weldon, Dr. D. V. Court-right, George D. McDowell and Delos C. Marcy. The American Legion Auxiliary will have charge of the lunch.

Meanwhile, local mail carriers have consented to carry 'March of Dimes' cards to residents of the city and county. The cards hold ten dimes and may be obtained from any of the carriers.

On January 23, persons throughout the city and county will be called to a meeting at the Court House to organize a local Infantile Paralysis chapter. Each local chapter assists those afflicted with Infantile Paralysis, regardless of age, race, color or creed, in the area it serves. The assistance includes providing orthopedic equipment and training, and financial assistance for payment of hospital expenses for patients in need of that care. During epidemics the volunteer workers not only aid those stricken by the disease but also work with doctors and public health officials.

One half of the money raised is left with the county in which it is contributed. There it is used by the local chapter to finance its services. The remainder of the funds is used by the National Foundation to carry on its work in research.

Mr. Clark again urges persons to drop their change in the Infantile Paralysis safe placed at Main and Court Streets.

94 LOSE LIVES

were sighted by a flying boat on patrol and the plane's crew directed naval craft to the rescue.

Rescuers found loss of life high with one Chinese the only survivor in one boatload of 39 persons.

Lifboats and life rafts were launched as rapidly as possible but some of those who escaped to them were ill-clad for the fury of the North Atlantic in January and during the next 20 hours, many of them froze to death.

Friendly craft attracted to the spot in unknown manner after the passage of many hours, picked up the survivors.

Among the rescued were 23 white persons and 66 Chinese.

Most of the ship's crew and passengers were Chinese, it was reported.

Four white members of the crew and about 90 Chinese were said by survivors, to have died, either of exposure, drowning or trapped aboard the doomed ship.

MIKE COCHRANE EXPECTS CALL TO DUTY IN NAVY

DENVER, Jan. 13 — Gordon Cochrane, better known as baseball's "iron mike," revealed today that he expects an early call for service in the Navy.

Mickey, one of baseball's all-time greats as catcher with the Philadelphia Athletics and later as the Detroit Tigers' playing manager, said he hopes to be accepted as aide to Lieut. Commander Gene Tunney in the navy's physical education department. Cochrane, now 39, took a preliminary examination three months ago, but still must pass his physical test.

LIBRARY BOARD PLANS PROGRAM OF ECONOMY

Members of the Circleville library board will meet Friday to plan a curtailment program which will fit into its 1942 budget.

Mrs. Clark Will and Dr. C. G. Stewart, members of the library board, conferred with county commissioners Monday hoping that county funds might be made available for the maintenance of the library, but commissioners refused to grant any financial assistance, according to Tom A. Renick, chairman of the library board.

U. S. BATTERIES PROVE SUPERIOR IN ISLAND WAR

the invaders chose to attack Gen. McArthur's ground defenses for three successive days without appreciable aid from the air.

Observers concluded that Japan does not possess a sufficient quantity of planes to operate simultaneously in the Philippines and on other fronts.

In this connection, it was pointed out that while the battle of Luzon was being waged mostly with artillery and infantry, the Japs freely used air weapons to inaugurate the duel for the Dutch East Indies.

Tacticians said that Japan probably was forced to divert the planes previously used in the Philippines over to the Indies invasion. They explained that while air power would be an important adjunct to the Luzon offensive, it was an imperative need in the Indies attack, where bombers covered Japanese landing parties.

Elsewhere on the war front, an investigation was opening into the origin of a fire which destroyed the U. S. Army transport Cleveland in Alaskan waters.

Indications were that the 7,314-ton vessel was engaged in transporting supplies and men to the nation's Alaskan outposts. All personnel on the boat were rescued, but the cargo, according to the War Department, was a complete loss.

There was no hint of the ship's location when the fire broke out, but War Department spokesmen intimated a belief that the boat was docked.

WAR TODAY

frigates and privateers in the war of 1812, when the destructive raids of these small craft compelled Britain to sign a peace on favorable terms.

More lately "cruiser warfare" has fallen into disfavor in naval circles, where the destruction of main enemy naval forces by heavy fleet action has become the predominant doctrine.

Of course such complete victory over the Japanese main fleets would be most desirable, but heavy fleets of superdreadnaughts cannot operate at extreme ranges from their bases, and the distance of British and American bases from the Japanese Islands appears to preclude a decisive battle between main fleets until such bases can be constructed.

Up U. S. Alley
Meantime "cruiser war" seems to be the united forces' dish. The vast extension of Japanese transportation lines and the thin spreading of Japan's resources afford a made-to-order opportunity for a modern campaign of harrying and destruction.

Today's dispatches from the Philippines are an illustration of how thin Japan's air forces have been spread. The Mikado's air force is reputed to possess about 1,000 dive bombers, including somewhat obsolete types, but it would seem that demands for these sorts of air fighters from other fronts have compelled their transfer while the battle for Corregidor is still at its height.

It takes no expert to perceive at a glance the vulnerability of the vast system of sea-borne transportation Japan has been forced to build up, and must maintain, to carry out the tremendous land, sea and air blitzkrieg she has undertaken. She has been obliged to fight at Wake, about 2,000 miles away and probably must still maintain a powerful naval scouting force in the nearby Marshall and Caroline Islands. To the Philippines is another 2,000 miles, and Hong Kong is equally far.

GREECE'S EXILED KING TO VISIT WASHINGTON

LONDON, Jan. 13 — King George II of Greece and Premier Emanuel Tsouderos of the Greek government-in-exile will visit the United States soon at the invitation of President Roosevelt.

ALLIED NATIONS READY TO BLAST NIPPON TROOPS

London "Guesses" Change In Situation Can Be Expected Soon

was that practically everyone in London was doing plenty of guessing.

SINGAPORE, Jan. 13 — A powerful anti-axis aerial offensive on the Malayan Front was anticipated today with indications that strong reinforcements of planes and airmen already have reached Singapore.

A high British authority predicted that the united forces will have "air superiority over the Japanese within three days."

Meanwhile, Japanese forces were hammering at new British defense lines in western Malaya only 150 miles from Singapore.

But this great Far Eastern base's strengthened air defenses were reflected in an announcement that Netherlands East Indies planes shot down three Jap bombers during repeated enemy raids over Singapore yesterday.

Formations Split

These Jap assaults were declared to have caused no appreciable damage and only a few casualties. The Jap raiders came over the island base in two formations — the second consisting of 24 planes — but were scattered quickly by anti-aircraft fire and fighter patrols.

It was reported that a total of 125 Japanese bombers and fighters participated in yesterday's raid on Singapore. British fighters were said to have shot down at least six of the raiders and probably four more.

BATAVIA, Jan. 13 — The Dutch East Indies high command today

conceded loss of the tiny oil island of Tarakan off the North Borneo coast, but announced direct hits on two additional Japanese transports by N. E. I. bombing planes.

This brought to four the number of Jap transports hit within the last 48 hours by planes of the combined united nations air forces. In addition, two Jap cruisers were hit and a "near miss" scored on a destroyer.

(Editor's Note: A "near miss" is the dropping of a bomb sufficiently close to a naval target that its explosion under water might conceivably spring a seam or do other damage to the vessel.)

Tarakan Given Up

It was apparent from the start that no concerted attempt to save Tarakan from the overwhelming Jap forces was to be made. The garrison there consisted only of a small "demolition squad," charged with destroying all installations and oil supplies before handing the little island over to the invaders.

A new communique clearly revealed that the N. E. I. intends to give the yellow occupants of Tarakan no respite and in collaboration with American and Australian fliers, plans to harass without cessation all enemy attempts to bring up reinforcements.

OHIOAN TO HEAD PRESS DIVISION OF CENSORSHIP

Hugh Kane, managing editor of the News, will serve as acting editor for the duration, Howard said before leaving.

GERMANS CALLING UP MORE MEN FOR ARMY

LONDON, Jan. 13 — A Reuters (British) Stockholm dispatch said today that authoritative circles in Berlin confirmed that a "considerable new call-up" of men to the Nazi armed forces is under way in Germany.

ON WAY TO U. S.

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 13 — En route to Washington today was Hubertus J. Van Mook, lieutenant governor general of the Dutch East Indies. He is to represent his nation in all matters which may affect Dutch-American relations.

FUEHRER WILL REBUILD MUNICH

least the secret remains that of a few dozen around him. It is all in this blueprint in the Fuehrer House in Munich, carefully drawn to meet every condition or qualification this man Hitler believes will fasten that mystic hold of his on the people within Germany after he dies.

This blueprint, if ever it materializes, visualizes a great square in Munich on the spot where the city's present central railway station is located. All these tracks, all these rambling low buildings of the station, and scores of big hotels and buildings immediately facing it vanish from sight on that blueprint.

Planned Avenue With Vast Arch

From the huge square emerging here would unfold also an avenue of majestic proportions leading straight through the city to the historic street and square down which he and his brown-shirted Nazis walked in 1923, to meet a blast of machine guns and there with the end for another ten years of their beer hall putsch. On that blueprint it is to be an avenue with an arch such as only the Caesars dreamed of. Hundreds of houses which would have to be razed on either side never offered its draughtsman a moment's qualm of conscience.

As Hitler designed it with that ever busy pencil of his, a great squat and square mausoleum is to rise in the exact center of that Munich square, forming the basic mantle of a gigantic square column to rise some seven hundred feet into the air. On top of that column is to stand a great Nazi eagle holding the swastika in its claws. The spread of the wings, according to the specifications on that blueprint, from one tip to the other would measure 225 feet.

Columns and pillars, like the Roman temples of old, would provide the chief architectural relief to the eye in the vast structure of the mausoleum. Inside, and thus actually inside the holy column above, the sarcophagus of Fuehrer I of the Third Reich would stand on a high pedestal. It would be a mastery work of German stone and artisanship, simple in its exterior design but impressive to the eye.

24-Hour Guard

Here, amidst the eagles and flags and wreaths of Nazidom, guarded day and night by steel helmeted men who marched with him or the sons who come after them, Hitler could lie and keep his hold on the masses. As far as I know, he had not yet definitely decided whether it would serve his purpose best to follow the method of Lenin in Red Square in Moscow and give the pilgrims to the shrine a glimpse of himself through a glass aperture.

There are many around him — he consults or used to with astrologers and psychologists alike on this point — who are inclined to believe that mystery and the unseen are more powerful than the opposite. One school of thought in the Reich, for example, is convinced that the actual sight of Lenin's body under its glass case in Moscow detracted from the mystic effect desired and secured largely a physical reaction.

This school feels strongly, too, that with a glass aperture the crowd filing past naturally would stare only through the glass and fail to get into the spirit of its surroundings. In fact, they say, the average man or woman in their eager and excited state of mind at seeing Fuehrer Hitler through the glass probably would never notice or glance at anything else around there. Spectacular Decoration Planned

Be that as it may, an important role would naturally be played by the atmosphere of appropriate decoration surrounding the tomb. There is an idea for the moment of huge torches burning in eternal flame of red fire, the smoke being drawn off through special air filters but nevertheless offering just a touch of incense.

The soft blue light always filtering on the tomb of old Emperor William I in Berlin — so famous and effective that tourists from all over the world used to make a bee-line for it — also has come into consideration. There would be a specially sound-proof floor, carefully designed to deaden the footfalls of the passing crowd and thus to preserve the glorified silence.

Leading into and away from the shrine itself would be the doors into the various antechambers comprising in part the museums and exhibition rooms of the things held most sacred to Nazidom. There could be seen, in one section of the structure, all the uniforms and personal things used by the Fuehrer in life. The boots, the hats, the caps, the shoes. In a special glass case the iron cross he won in World War I, and perhaps the Nazi Party button he originally put on as Party Member Number 7 back there in the roaring days of Munich of the Burgerbrauekeller and street fights with Communists.

Display of Hitler's Paintings

Another case no doubt would show the Fuehrer's pen and ink sketches and the watercolors drawn by him in the lean and hungry days before the World War and later in the trenches, sold for a pittance until he came to power, when the price for each of them went sky high and the Nazis combed out all art shops and attics in the hope of raking up every last one of them.

Those and the designs for his highways and Nazi edifices now standing around all over Germany as laid down on paper by him will all be in a glass case in that exhibition room.

The idea would be to let the visitor see for himself the Fuehrer as he was in private life and as the leader, always stressing the simplicity and the miracle of this man.

It would be effective preparation on the mental side and indelibly stamp into the mind that here in the shrine next door lay more than just an ordinary mortal. It was to be a privilege to the wandering pilgrim to come near him, even as it was in life.

Why Munich Was Chosen

It is but natural, therefore, that he should choose Munich instead of Berlin for his final resting place and as the spot best adopted to the plan in mind. His Brown House of early days still stands there as a decade ago; alongside of it, facing the great Koenigsplatz, he has changed everything by building the temples to his sixteen dead killed in the putsch of 1923 and also the Fuehrer House, a lavish edifice now used by him for official receptions and as headquarters down south of the Nazi Party.

In Munich also Hitler still has that private little apartment of his over a former garage in one of the side streets. That is where he lived when money was short and times were uncertain. He drank beer then and ate dry bread with sausage, even that much was frequently sent to him as a gift by friends who knew that his gaunt cheeks were not from internal illness or overeating.

The Bavarian furniture and fittings inside that little apartment remain the same today as they were then; it is one of those sentimental things about Hitler which no power and no glory in the world can change. He has his moments, and at such times he likes to get back into a state of mind what we over here would call being yourself. It doesn't last long and it only happens when a few privileged cronies of his old days are around. Then he talks freely and sometimes even tells a joke.

Hotbed Of Anti-Nazism

Hitler clings to Munich like a desperate man in love with the wife he is losing. That is the whole irony of it, for the saying goes in Germany that Black Bavaria harbors more Nazi-haters and Hitler foes per square inch than all the rest of the Reich combined. The hotbed of this anti-Nazism is without question Munich itself; where the stolid Bavarian of largely Catholic faith and the more liberal-minded artist and student class of people like to take life easy and shake hands under the table against the Nazis.

Perhaps more has happened or almost happened to Hitler in attempts on his life in Munich than anywhere else, to mention only the bomb blast in the beer cellar of 1939 or the shots from windows as he drove through the streets not many years ago. Even the trains he arrived on have had accidents in the Munich railway station, but his luck held out and they missed him.

Despite it all, Hitler has that fatal love for Munich and Bavaria, perhaps because it is close to his own Austria, and therefore he has chosen to lie after death in the midst of that city to keep his mystic hold on the Germans.

That is, if his luck holds out and the war he is fighting doesn't knock him for a loop or ends with him in flight and his Third Reich in ruins. According to his own sworn oath before the Reichstag, he does not intend to come out alive from a lost war and if and when the time comes to assume that we over here in America, have beaten him, then we have the right to remind him of that fatal oath.

(Editor's Note: Huns tomorrow will begin the strange story of the rise and fall of Karl Boemer, "big shot No. 4" in the Nazi Reich.)
